PRESIDENT IS FACING BIG PROBLEM

Whether to Sign or Veto Exclusion Measure Is Difficult Decision

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, April 16.—President Coolidge was face to face today with the most difficult decision that has thus far confronted him as chief executive—whether to sign or veto Japanese exclusion as set forth in the new immigration bill.

Those who look only at the international aspect of the situation are frankly fearful that if the president approves the legislation it will provide an affront to Japan that will undo twenty years of careful diplomacy and turn the greatest power in the Orient into a passive if not open enemy of America and American interests in the far east.

On Pacific Coast

On the other hand, Mr. Coolidge's advisers are exceedingly apprehensive as to what may happen to Mr. Coolidge, the candidate, should he veto exclusion. For a generation, the Pacific coast and the far west generally have sought to exclude Japanese immigration by federal statute. Now that the long fight is won it would be "political suicide," they state, for the president to nullify the fruits of that victory by vetoing the exclusion measure.

Japan Has Faith In U. S. Justice, Says Leader

TOKIO, April 16.—"Japan will not give up hope yet," Foreign Minister Matsui told American correspondents today among other things in a two-page statement, discussing the passage by the American congress of the Japan exclusion act.

"We still believe in American justice," he continued, "and thus I appeal to the American people through you newspapermen.

"Occupying the greatest position in the world financially and strategically, America is enabled to act arbitrarily or with fine magnanimity."

FIRE SHOTS INTO KU KLUX'S HOME

One Wounded When Raid Is Made on House of Exalted Cyclops

MARION, Ill., April 16.—Ross Lizenby was shot in the leg here about 2 a. m. today when a carload of gunmen swooped down on the home of Sam T. Stearns and poured about twenty bullets into the house. Stearns is exalted cyclops of the Ku Klux Klan here.

Lizenby was the only one hit during the fusillade. The occupants of the house sought safety by lying on the floor. Nearly all the windows in the house were shot out and much damage done. No arrests have been made.

Sheriff George Galligan denied he had requested troops. Lizenby was one of the Klansmen indicted here several weeks ago.

Re-Affirms Verdict On Orientals

WASHINGTON, April 16.—In response to a demand for a record vote, the Senate today re-affirmed its decision to exclude all Japanese and other Orientals from the United States. When the Shortridge exclusion amendment to the immigration bill came up yesterday evening only a handful of senators were in the chamber, and the amendment was adopted unanimously and without any protest. The acceptance stood as the will of the Senate, but this afternoon Senator Reed, Republican, of Pennsylvania, moved to reconsider the first vote, such action being insisted upon by Senator Colt, Republican of Rhode Island. The vote was 71 to 4.

URGE CHANGE IN CONTROL BOARD

Realty Men Want Robinson As City Representative In Advertising

Consideration of the advertising campaign that is to be launched occupied the greater part of the time at the weekly meeting of the Glendale Realty Board in the Presbyterian church today, when it was recommended that Mayor Spencer Robinson, as presiding officer of the Glendale City Council, be appointed as a member of the board of control to represent the city, in the place of Councilman Sam A. Davis. The Realty Board will support the campaign in every possible way, it was decided.

It was pointed out that the intention of the Chamber of Commerce ways and means committee was to have the board of control composed of the presiding officer of each organization represented on the board, and it was for this reason that Mayor Robinson's name was urged as that of the proper person to represent the city.

The May issue of The Arrowhead, the Union Pacific magazine, which is to be published under a contract with the Realty Board, may be turned over to the board of control of the advertising fund to be edited, according to a suggestion that was offered and that will be submitted to the organization.

Endorse Council

It was also decided to endorse the action of the City Council in pledging $5000 to the fund, in view of the fact that an item for advertising the city is provided in the year's budget.

W. S. Kirk, the newest grandfather in the Realty Board, passed around candy for the women and cigars for the men, in honor of his grandson, Stafford Eaton Kent.

The board's radio program will be given over the Los Angeles Times' station on Saturday night, from 8 to 9:30 o'clock.

Edwin T. Keiser, state real estate commissioner, will be the guest of the board at its meeting on April 30.

British Negotiations With Soviet Watched

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Results of the British negotiations looking to complete recognition of the Russian soviet will have much to do with determining the future attitude of the American government toward Russia, a high government official stated today.

It was pointed out that should the soviets accede to the demands of Great Britain for recognition of private property rights, recognize debts incurred by former Russian governments, and agree to compensate foreigners for property losses, three important obstacles to American recognition would be removed.

The Holy week service, a part of the series that is being conducted this week at the Glendale theater, was held at noon today by Rev. H. C. Culbertson, D. D., of the Plymouth Congregational church of Los Angeles, with a large audience on hand to hear his message.

FREEDOM FOR FRIEND OF SLAYER

Companion of Woman In Trunk Murder to Get Liberty, Report

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—Release of Bert Webster, who was held in connection with the slaying of Dr. Benjamin Baldwin to which Mrs. Margaret Willis has confessed sole responsibility, is unofficially predicted in police circles this morning.

It is up to the district attorney's office to file a complaint against him if he is to be held, according to Assistant Captain of Detectives Longuevan, who has conducted the investigation into the strange case.

Webster is given a clean bill by the police, who say that Mrs. Willis loved him deeply. They are endeavoring to break her story that she shot Baldwin to save her honor. She is in quarantine in the women's tank in the city jail, another inmate having the smallpox.

Freedom Looms

Webster has admitted that he helped Mrs. Willis hurl the trunk, into which she had stuffed the doctor's body, down a canyon side near San Fernando early Sunday morning, but denied any knowledge of the murder except what Mrs. Willis has told him.

It was expected District Attorney Asa Keyes would order Webster's release by noon, but will order him placed under bond as a material witness in the probable trial of Mrs. Willis on a murder charge.

MEXICANS CLAMP LID ON GAMBLING

Noted Border Places Are Closed on Orders From Government Men

TIA JUANA, Mexico, April 16.—Monte Carlo, largest gambling casino on the California-Mexican border, was darkened by drawn shades today. And its myriad of electric lights will not shine tonight, for the Obregon government clamped down the lip on open gambling at Tia Juana and Mexicali at midnight last night.

Sunset Inn, where Southern California society folk were wont to spend their week-ends in gayety, drinking, dancing, and at the gaming tables in the famous "blue room," was also closed by its proprietors, who claimed it could not exist without the profit derived from the games of chance.

Hits Certain Games

The embargo is operative against roulette, blackjack, craps, stud poker, chuck-a-luck and the wheel of fortune.

The Foreign club, at "Old Town," will be operated through the summer months. American tourists will have an opportunity of courting "lady luck" at this club, the management declared, because Ecarte, Klondike and Panginguay do not fall under the head of gambling in the Mexican law.

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—Apparently unaware of the approaching danger, Tom Eastman, 66, was perhaps fatally injured today when he stepped in front of a Southern Pacific switch engine at Santa Fe avenue and South Main street.

Black or White?

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—Is a Hindoo white or black? That question must be decided by the United States district court of appeals. Some time ago the United States district court was ordered to nullify the citizenship of all Hindoos on the ground they are not white people. Assistant United States District Attorney R. B. Camarello faces a long trial in which S. G. Pandit, prominent Hindoo attorney of Los Angeles, is plaintiff. Banquet Success

The Philathea banquet held last night in the smaller banquet hall of the First Methodist church proved to be one of the most enjoyable affairs given this season by the class. There were about sixty young women in attendance and a wonderful spirit of enthusiasm and comradeship was evinced.

The long banquet tables were artistically decorated in the class colors, blue and gold, with attractive arrangements of California poppies placed in the center of the tables and blue and gold bon bon baskets filled with tiny Easter eggs and dainty place cards with floral designs carrying out the same tints.

After the serving of the banquet Miss Jennie Lacy, toastmistress, introduced the speakers of the evening. The class motto, "Service for Others," was the predominating theme of the addresses given.

Miss Lacy gave briefly the history of the Philathea class for the benefit of the new members of the class and visitors, relating a few of the ways the Philatheas have given "Service for Others."

Miss Waunita Claycomb rendered a vocal selection which was greatly appreciated, and Miss Alice Rose gave a violin selection.

Mrs. Helen K. Scripps, class teacher, gave a beautiful talk on "My Ideal Philathea Girl" enumerating the qualities of the winsome young woman who is the ideal Philathea girl.

Miss Lacy then introduced the honored guest of the evening, A. W. Tower, Sunday school superintendent, who gave a fine address on the growth and development of the Sunday school and church, and a short outline of the plans inaugurated for new equipment for the young people's department. Mr. Tower possesses a natural and contagious sense of humor which held the interest and attention of his listeners.

At the close of a pleasant evening the Philatheas unanimously expressed their thanks to the mothers for their kindness in preparing the banquet and to the young women who assisted in serving.

SCORES TRAFFIC POLICE METHODS AS UN-AMERICAN

Present System Stirs Enmity Against City, Is Claim Of O. W. Lewis

By request, The Glendale Evening News gives space to the following communication from O. W. Lewis, 1009 East Windsor road, relative to traffic arrests in Glendale. A copy of the letter was shown to city officials. They said it will be one of the duties of the newly appointed City Traffic Commission to decide on what policy to take relative to arrests.

Editor The Evening News—For publication if desired.

As an enthusiastic resident and property owner of our fair and fast growing city of Glendale I cannot refrain from expressing my resentment and indignation occasioned by a matter which affects fair play, civic pride and deeply concerns the general welfare and prosperity of our city of 50,000.

I refer to the unfair, un-American, small-town methods the Glendale police department (our own department) has adopted and is carrying out to enforce the traffic laws of our city—pardon me, I meant to say, to collect revenue from motorists. If the present methods are allowed to continue our slogan "The Fastest Growing City in America," will be changed by the motoring public to "The Fastest Growing Unpopular City in America."

Knows Police Traps

No, I have not been pinched by one of our traffic cops—I am too wise—I am a resident and know the location of their traps and the tree-bordered side streets where they lie in wait for their unsuspecting prey. But—what about the motorists from other communities who, for pleasure or business reasons, drive into Glendale—prospective home-seekers—the people our civic organizations spend thousands of dollars to attract to Glendale, and upon whose goodwill the future growth of our city and community depends? We attract them to Glendale, meet them, greet them, and the police department slaps them in the face or secures their available cash, which could be used for a down payment on a home, for a fine because of their breaking a minor ordinance or speeding at the terrific rate of twenty-five miles per hour on Brand boulevard.

Do the salaries of our traffic cops, police officials and judges depend on the income derived from this source? Are our traffic cops maintained for the sole purpose of sneaking up on motorists who unconsciously, but not with any hazard to public life or property, break some technical minor ordinance, or are they used for the purpose of encouraging observance of traffic laws and endeavoring to educate the motoring public in a courteous and well-meaning manner? If they are maintained for the former purpose, i. e., as a source of revenue, then let's abolish them and raise the taxes sufficiently to make up for any deficiency which might exist in the city treasury. If they are maintained for the purpose of enforcing the traffic laws, then to uphold our pride and in a spirit of justice let them operate in the open—a traffic officer in the open patrolling the boulevards in plain sight is far more valuable and effective than one hundred traffic cops hiding out to ensnare all unfortunate motorists who fall into

Editorial Page of Evening News Wins Praise from Kirk

Editor The Evening News—That new editorial page you have just inaugurated in The News gives it that metropolitan appearance such a dandy paper should have. You have graduated—and with high honors. The press work, typographical appearance and general make-up are all that could be desired in a paper published in a city many times the size of Glendale. Your progressive spirit should be an inspiration to the other business institutions in "the fastest growing city in America." Please accept my sincere congratulations for what you are doing for Glendale.

FIRE PROTECTION TO BE DISCUSSED

Angelus Forest Association Will Meet In Glendale Tuesday, May 6th

Fire protection will be the principal topic at the meeting of the Angelus Forest Protective association that is to be held in Glendale on May 6, when representatives from all the towns and cities included in the area covered by the association's activities will be invited to confer with the officials who will be here. A communication addressed to the Chamber of Commerce was read at last night's board meeting, in which it was asked that arrangements be made to hold the regular monthly meeting of the association in Glendale in the interest of the protection of the timber in the Angelus forest area and Secretary E. F. Sanders will communicate with C. G. Dunwoody, head of the association, advising him of the plans that are being made to accommodate the visitors.

Attorney Bert P. Woodard as chairman of the legislative committee, was named by D. L. Smith, who presided at last night's meeting, to represent the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting to be held in the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce on Friday, April 18, when plans will be laid for the preparation of legislation that will have as its object the reapportionment of representatives in the state legislature.

More Publicity

A proposal to feature Glendale in the rotogravure section of the Los Angeles Times at an early date was accepted by the directors, the cost not to exceed $100 to the organization.

P. B. Ogden, who has been in conference with the ways and means committee regarding plans for the intensive campaign to raise Glendale's advertising fund, appeared before the board and outlined his plans for the drive. The board authorized the committee to retain the services of Mr. Ogden for the work.

The request of the Glendale and Montrose railway to abolish commutation fares between Glendale and Eagle Rock will be heard before the railroad commission on April 23 and the transportation committee was authorized to look after this city's interests at the hearing.

Charles R. Stewart informed the board that he had secured the originals of the cartoons used in the recent educational campaign, leading up to the start of the work of collecting Glendale's advertising fund, and that they would be displayed during the remainder of the drive. Director Harry G. MacBain volunteered to assume the expense of preparing the cartoons for distribution.

MILLIONS SPENT LAST SEASON ON COMMUNITY PLAY

Report Shows Amount Twice As Large as Figures Ten Years Ago

More than $14,000,000 was spent for public recreation last year by cities in the United States and Canada, according to R. E. Tucker, local Community Service representative. This information was furnished Mr. Tucker by the Playground and Recreation association of America, which has just compiled the returns from a questionnaire on community play. This sum is more than twice the amount spent for the same purpose ten years ago, he states.

"In a total of 680 cities reporting community recreation leadership, 660 conduct 6591 playgrounds and recreation centers under paid leaders," says Mr. Tucker. "In 1906, when Theodore Roosevelt and others organized the association, only forty-one cities had playgrounds and recreation centers with paid leaders.

"Approximately 1,200,000 was the reported daily average of children and adults at the summer playgrounds of the country in 1923. This figure is four times greater than the 1913 attendance.

Good Investment

"The reason for the steadily increasing expenditures for recreation at a time when municipalities are bent on economy, the association states, is that playgrounds and recreation are recognized as a good investment. Delinquency and crime costs are reduced. Chief of Police Conlon of Leominster, Mass., says that delinquency cases in Leominster averaged ninety-one a year prior to the organization of Community Service, the local recreation agency. Since its coming, the number decreased to fifty-three in 1923.

"In Utica, N. Y., Anna D. Nayland, chief probation officer, attributed to the efficiency of playgrounds the fact that not a single child was put on probation during the month of July in the children's court. Judge C. Penny of Miami, Fla., gave credit to the supervised play program for the fact that, while previously he had had twenty or twenty-five cases of delinquency in his court in a month, in the six months after the playgrounds opened, he had only five cases. Topeka, Kan., found that truancy decreased when playgrounds were installed near the schools.

"Defiance, Ohio, Centralia, Ill., and other cities reported the practical elimination of mischief and property destruction by boys at Halloween due to the organized community celebrations of the city recreation committees. Many other cities reported decreases in delinquency attributed by judges, probation officers and others di-

Ermine has a pale bisque color in summer

Why I Am In Glendale

We had heard of this fair country,
Of this California clime—
Where there's always health and comfort,
Where it's summer all the time.

But I'm ready to confess it,
In our minds there was a doubt,
Though we're not from old Missouri,
"To be shown," we then came out.

We decided when we reached here,
We would carefully look around,
For a place of scenic beauty,
Just the best that could be found.

Then the all important question—
"Schools"—in this we must not fail,
But we've found none could be better
Than the schools of fair Glendale.

I admire the town of Glendale,
And its wondrous civic pride;
Of the stick-together feeling
Known throughout this country wide.

I'm no longer among the doubting;
I will shout the beauties loud—
Of this wondrous California—
Of Glendale—I'm truly proud.

HEAD OF W.C.T.U. OUTLINES PLANS

Mrs. C. W. Bacon Urges Members to Help Elect Clean Men to Office

In taking up the duties of her office, Mrs. C. W. Bacon, recently elected president of the Glendale W. C. T. U., gave a most inspiring message to the members. It is with pleasure that The Glendale Evening News prints the following excerpts from Mrs. Bacon's address:

"Sisters, I appreciate the confidence you have placed in me by asking me to lead in the work this year. I acquiesce only with the assurance of your hearty support and co-operation. It is our work and it is together we must face the task, and get under it with earnest prayer and honest effort, depending upon God for wisdom, for guidance, and for strength and make this jubilee year the best year of our work together.

Many Elections

"This year is a crucial one, not only because it marks a half century of service for God and home and every land, but we are to elect a president and 435 members of congress, thirty-seven states elect governors and forty-four states will elect legislators. Besides these thousands of county and district officials will be elected. What kind of officials shall these be?

"An aroused citizenship is necessary if men are chosen pledged to law enforcement. The private citizen, the voter, often sleeps while the worst of men go into office. If we are awake we can help to make public opinion. Public opinion has been called the boss that is most effective.

"Do you know that a modified Volstead act would restore political power to the brewers?

"Do you know that a return of light wine and beer would mean the return of hated saloons?

"Co-operation has been the word uppermost in every mind when thinking of this work. May we not take as our slogan for the year 'Co-operation the Key to Achievement'? There is wonderful significance wrapped up in that word co-operation. There is action, there is unity, there is harmony.

"What we accomplish as an organization depends upon what we do through our departments. Each department superintendent is a specialist in her line of work. With eighteen or twenty specialists in action bringing us inspirational programs this year should be one of achievement.

"What shall be our objective? Here are four aims which you may wish to discuss later, first, every member a registered voter; second, a goal of 300 members; third, every superintendent at work; fourth, fifty subscriptions to the 'Union Signal.'

"There are objectives to the end that we may have an all-around citizenship, officials staunch for prohibition and victory for law enforcement."

Ask Change in Class Of Glendale Property

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—Gordon Whitnall, director of the city planning commission of Los Angeles, recommended to the city council that the territory between Los Feliz boulevard and Glendale boulevard, and from the Southern Pacific tracks to the Los Angeles river, be hanged from zone D (light industry) to zone B (apartment), except for the frontage on Los Feliz and Glendale boulevards, which he recommends to be placed in zone C (business district).

STOCK OF SPRING GARMENTS SHOWN

Fred B. Walton Store Reveals Immense Variety In Styles for Men

The newest spring styles in men's hats, shirts and neckties are now being shown at Fred B Walton's haberdashery shop, 146-148 South Brand boulevard, "the store of personal service."

A particularly popular new shirt featured by Mr. Walton is a plain color, imported English broadcloth with two collars to match, a very stylish article, much sought after by the younger men. The Grayco line of standard shirts is carried, and there are other special shirt avlues to be found at the Fred B. Walton shop.

In hats, the Stetson, Mallory and Borsalino brands are carried, the latter an Italian importation. Colors run to light shades, Mr. Walton states, with snap brims, a little wider than last season.

Variety in Cravats

Hundreds of specially made ties are being featured at the Fred B. Walton shop, making it a certainty that even the most fastidious man or young man will find something exactly suited to his taste.

The shop has just been enlarged to double its capacity and completely remodeled. Stocks have been practically doubled, and the entire interior has been re-arranged, making it the largest strictly men's haberdashery establishment in Glendale, according to Mr. Walton.

A little less than a year ago Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Walton took over the shop. They have in that time built up an excellent patronage, largely by reason of their "personal service," they believe, a policy which is the backbone of the business.

Men and young men in search of just the right Easter togs are promised a surprise at the Fred B. Walton haberdashery shop, in distinctive wear at attractive prices.

ENEMY PRESENTS SOLID RANKS IN WAR ON ROOSTER

Antis Express Opinions on Chanticleer's Habits In Letters Today

"Roosters to right of us,
Roosters to left of us,
Roosters behind us
Cackle and crow,—
Roused from our peaceful sleep,
Almost inclined to weep,
O for oblivion deep,
Suffering Glendalians!"—
A Light Sleeper.

"I am quite in sympathy with J. R. McC.," says the author of the above, in the following letter to the Rooster Editor of The Glendale Evening News. "It is anything but nerve-soothing to be awakened by those noisy fellows, each trying to make us believe he has the best voice, when we need rest and sleep to help us through the heavy strain of life. Then when we want fresh air and open a window or door, there is nothing but the disagreeable odor from dirty yards where all kinds of disease germs are let loose. Banish the rooster, if not the hen. And while you are at it, banish the hundreds of untagged dogs that destroy our gardens and lawns and make all hours hideous with their barking. I make a great effort to keep my own little spot in conformity with a beautiful Glendale; but believe me, it is a constant fight with the dogs and dog owners, who think their animals should be allowed to do anything they want to.

Barnyard Verses

If space permits the following is a little poem on the rooster question, which I learned when a child:

THE BARNYARD CONVENTION
My name is Peter Simple and I give you all a warning,
I'm an early riser, I wake when
day is dawning
At four o'clock I leave my bed in greatest agitation
Awakened early in the morn by the following conversation:
Cackle cackle, cackle' at the morning's early dawning,
'Cock-a-doodle' my friends give you all a warning
Fresh new laid eggs for your breakfast, in the morning
With an 'ach chac chac, ach chac chac' and 'cock-a-doodle do.'
At nine o'clock I go to bed to rest
my weary legs
And my revenge upon the fowl is eating up their eggs
I have perchance some pleasant dream of fairies without number,
All singing to me sweetly when I am wakened from my slumber,
With this 'Cackle cackle cackle.'
Bright chanticleer proclaims the morn no doubt—that's very right—
I wish he'd not proclaim it so near the dead of night,
I've no doubt my feathered friends
that good are your intentions,

ELECTIONEERING FOR OFFICES IN CLUB IS VETOED

Tuesday Afternoon Directors Announce Decision In Coming Contest

There will be no electioneering in the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse next Tuesday, April 22, the day of the annual election, was the announcement made at the club meeting yesterday afternoon by the president, Mrs. Daniel Campbell, upon a unanimous decision made by the board of directors' meeting in special session between the noon luncheon and afternoon gathering.

It was evident that this decision is agreeable to the club body.

Immediately after making known the action of the board Mrs. Campbell added, "this does not mean that you are not to get as many people out to vote as you can."

Only club members in good standing will be eligible to vote.

Interest Is Keen

Never in the history of the club has enthusiasm been so keen before an election and the contests for several offices promise to be close and exciting. The ballot box will be open from 1 till 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Following the bustle of convention activities last week the club meeting yesterday was somewhat of a relaxation from a strenuous program.

Beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning the club women enjoyed the meeting of the fine arts department, then the meeting of the Bible department. Later there was a noon luncheon with special speakers and in the afternoon a half hour business meeting and later a program.

Talks On Missions

Miss Nell Briker Mayhew of Pasadena, painter and etcher, talked to the fine arts department on "California Missions." She has visited every one of the old missions and has caught the real California spirit in her compositions shown in illustrating her talk. She also spoke during the luncheon hour, stressing the part of art in making better homes.

At the Bible department meeting Miss Winifred Rouzee gave an inspiring pre-Easter message, speaking particularly on the symbolism of the cross, the feast of the passover and the feast of unleavened bread in connection with the Easter time.

In addition to Miss Mayhew, other luncheon hour speakers were Peter Hanson, president of the Glendale Realty Board, whose address on "Better Homes" was printed in full in yesterday's edition of The Glendale Evening News; Mrs. Ferbeck, talented Glendale artist; and Mrs. T. R. Quayle of Chicago, Ill., Y. M. C. A.

Daily Greeting To News Readers

If I am spiritual, then the world is a revelation of God to me; and there is a spirit looks in upon my spirit from out of the sky, and the earth, and the sea; from out of the sun, and the moon, and from out of the rose. —William Mountford.

SOMETHING TO CHEW ON

Mr. Wrigley, the chewing gum magnate, proposes to spend thirty million dollars on Catalina Island within a comparatively short time. He apparently is able to visualize the finished product—a summer and winter resort such as the world has never seen. Chances are he will make his dream come true, and The Glendale News joins with countless others in wishing him well. We will all go over, occasionally, to catch a big fish, ride on his proposed railroad, motor over the mountain tops, put up at his hotel and chew his best brand of gum. Certainly we will chew his gum if we chew any, for it will be the millions made from the sale of gum that will make the dream come true.

All of which is recorded for the purpose of again pointing to the value of advertising. Not merely buying space in newspapers and filling it with the first statement that comes to mind, but with honest, straight-from-the-shoulder arguments. Some men go broke in the advertising game, just as they go broke in other lines of endeavor. It depends upon the article advertised and the manner and persistence with which it is presented to the public. Apparently Mr. Wrigley knows not only how to produce gum of exceptional quality, but knows equally well how to advertise. Or he has advertising experts who know how. The result is the same.

Glendale is willing to gamble, if necessary, that no spot in the wide world has more to offer in the way of undeveloped resources than can be found within its gates, and the territory just outside its gates. Glendale has quality to base its advertising campaign upon; the article advertised will be as represented; therefore there will be no disappointment when it makes delivery. Nothing remains to be done except to advertise wisely; tell our story simply but convincingly; and keep everlastingly at it.

If Mr. Wrigley can press the button and take thirty million dollars in profits out of American pockets for a good brand of chewing gum, certainly we of Glendale can afford to spread some of our dollars around in the form of advertising and attract a few millions for investments, factory sites, store buildings and homes.

Incidentally, Mr. Wrigley might be induced to open a branch gum factory here if our population grows rapidly enough. It is suggested as something for him to "chew on" when not busily engaged in making Catalina the greatest resort in the world.

HERE'S EASTER THOUGHT

If everyone would buy in Glendale, there would be no need for anyone to even wonder, let alone ask, "How's business?" Particularly with Easter just four days off, it is time to give this important matter immediate attention.

Glendale merchants have searched the markets everywhere for the newest and best in spring merchandise of every description, ranging the entire family needs, from little brother and sister to mother and dad. These merchants are here to serve you, at prices that make a trip to Los Angeles not only unnecessary but unprofitable.

Let the Doubting Thomases who discredit this look carefully through The Glendale Evening News advertising pages today. They will find convincing bargains. Then, if they still doubt, let them go to the stores and prove to their entire satisfaction not only that the prices are right but that the goods are of excellent quality and the very latest styles.

Don't forget, we all grow and prosper together. It is the Glendale merchants and their employees who make up a good proportion of Glendale's population. They must prosper or the city cannot prosper. They deserve your patronage and you owe it to your own pocketbook, in more ways than one, to give them the first chance to serve you.

NEEDS UNDERSTANDING

Industries were discussed at a meeting in San Fernando the other night under the auspices of the Greater Los Angeles association.

An industrial conference has been called for Anaheim by the California Real Estate association.

The California Development Association also is bending every effort to stabilize conditions by providing permanent employment for the newcomers to the southland, as well as other sections of the state.

California needs industries, but most of all it needs an intelligent understanding of its trade demands. Also, the hearty cooperation of the general public in fostering worthy enterprise.

By cooperation on the part of all civic interests this great Pacific slope can soon be transformed into the greatest factory area in the world. It has the climate, the shipping facilities, the labor and the capital.

To bring these various forces together in harmony should be the purpose of every thinking man and woman. There is no need of wildcat investments, but legitimate enterprise needs every ounce of support any local community can give it.

A yard, whether it be part of the grounds on which a home is built, or a vacant lot, should be free of weeds and rubbish. A well-kept yard, or lot, either is a credit to Glendale or the reverse. We should be thankful the vast majority keep things ship-shape. But we should not fail to give a kindly suggestion to those who are careless, or too busy, to see to these things. Each lot is a unit. The city has thousands of units. Visitors, motoring through out streets, are impressed by uniform cleanliness and the attractive appearance of the units as a whole. We have done much in the past few years, but who will say we cannot do more—or predict we will not do more.

Bootleggers will never rise to their greatest heights until they produce a liquid that is good for both men and flivvers. A substance that would make a Ford kick up its heels, without coating the engine with carbon; and furnish man with inspiration without consuming his stomach lining, would put the oil trust and soft drink trust out of business over night.

Residents of Glendale who want to preserve pictures of this city as it looks today, should lose no time in snapping their kodak. The skyscraper and factory skyline is going to change rapidly.

Golf never gained a real foothold until humorists began poking fun at it. When they called it cow pasture pool it gained world-wide publicity. Barnum was right.

If the old-fashioned bustles were still in style, we know where a cross section of a balloon tire could be used to good advantage.

THEY USED TO CALL THIS "LOCKING THE DOOR AFTER THE HORSE WAS STOLEN"

Calvin Coolidge

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Every one of the more than one hundred million people of the United States is interested in Calvin Coolidge.

Because he is President. And the President of the United States has probably more actual power than any man in the world.

By our peculiar form of government he is one-third. He alone is the executive, while both the legislative and judiciary are composed of groups.

Coolidge came to the Presidency by the act of destiny, through the death of Harding, and not by the direct franchise of the people; this renders his problem very delicate. He has to form policies of his own, yet at the same time avoid rupture with the policies of his predecessor. Yet to do this very thing he is well qualified.

The accent of his name is very properly placed on the first syllable. The temperature of his heart is known, probably, to his intimates, but the general public will never know the temperature of his head, because there isn't any.

His mind is singularly free from any sort of heat, whether fanaticism, superstition or hurry.

He is not large-boned, but rather a trim-looking man, smooth-faced and of the blonde or sandy type.

He looks like New England. And he probably is like New England.

He impresses one as being in the pink of physical perfection. As far as the records go, he is doubtless physically the healthiest man that ever assumed this job.

His most outstanding feature is his eye. His eyes are blue, and he carries them wide open. He has what George Meredith would call "a public eye."

When you are in conversation with company you find some of the folks are eager to talk, some talk all the time, some anxiously await an opportunity to butt in and some never talk at all unless they have to. Coolidge belongs to the last class. He seemed to me to be the sort of man that has made a practice all his life of waiting till other people got through giving their opinions. It is a good trick, for if one does this his remarks usually carry great weight.

Coolidge impresses me as very democratic, and singularly free from the sort of foolishness that seems to grow on most public men. He is kindly in his manner, gentle in his speech, pleasing in his appearance, but gives one the impression that once he has made up his mind it would be just as well not to waste any time trying to get him to change it.

As to the type of man he is, I should say that he is the lawyer kind of man. He does not impress you as a ponderous judge, an imposing statesman, a pompous general or a silver-tongued orator. He looks and acts like a shrewdly balanced, kindly but determined attorney.

I have known several Presidents, and the one Coolidge most resembles is General Grant.

I think if he can safely escape the wild beasts that lurk in the jungle of political parties—that is, if he determines to be President of the United States rather than leader of the Republican Party—he will make a very useful and capable President.

ROVING FARMERS
(From Santa Ana Register)

If the "Own your own home" movement is meeting success in the cities of the country, it is certainly not doing so in the agricultural districts. In the past 45 years the ratio of farm owners and farm tenants has changed from three-to-one to three-to-two. At the present rate of change it is likely that the next generation will show only one half the farms of America worked by their owners and the other half worked by tenants.

Many of the arguments against living always in a rented dwelling apply also to working a rented farm. In a tenant group frequent shifting from place to place is the rule. Farmers today are said to be moving restlessly from farm to farm and from state to state, not for the purpose of developing new land, but simply to try for success in another locality. A tries a farm that B has abandoned and B tries the farm which C has moved from, and C, likely enough, is to be found working A's deserted farm.

A thorough shaking up is sometimes beneficial to persons who have gotten into ruts in their work. But a restless, roving spirit among farmers, which leads them to change from farm to farm without improving their situation in any way, is often not a wholesome shaking up but a mere drifting from one failure to another.

Running a farm successfully requires intelligence and skill as well as perseverance. The farmer who owns his own land is more likely to develop and use all three qualities than the one who does not and who thinks, by a change of scene, to escape the work and thought necessary to make farming pay.

OUR DAILY BREAD
(From San Francisco Journal)

Plans are under way in a certain unnamed mid-western university to care for a future enrollment of 60,000 students. City planners of Greater New York envision a population of twenty-five millions in twenty years' time. Somebody has estimated that the population of the United States will total a half billion before the saturation point is reached.

All of which are matters depending entirely on the food supply of this country and of the world. Feeding a congested community of twenty-five millions of people is no academic question. A super college will have its food problem even in the Mississippi valley. Neither of these prophecies will come to pass until the United States has a greatly increased population. And Professor E. M. East of Harvard reports that this country has reached the food capacity of its own soil. Within fifteen years we shall not have a pound of food for export that is not offered in exchange for some other form of food!

Moreover, according to Professor East, the other civilized countries of the world face the same dire extremity. A short crop in America in place of the usual bumper crops will bring us to a system of food rationing more severe than that practiced during the war.

For, see what is happening! Up to the year 1800 the total population of the world never exceeded the figure of eight hundred and fifty millions. Then, due to the industrial revolution and the increase of wealth and food, the world's population figures leaped to the astonishing figure of two billions. Statistics show that today the world is growing at the rate of twenty millions per year. This means a new France every twenty-four months. Another America every five years!

If the United States ever reaches the population figures of two hundred millions she will be lucky or unlucky, as the case may be. For the rest of the world is filling up at an unparalleled rate. And, we repeat, the food capacity of every civilized country on earth has been reached.

America's biggest problem today is the increase of food production. Fifty-two per cent of our people today are non-producers of food; and this disproportion is steadily growing. Mother nature holds answer to the question, How big?

Little Studies —of— Human Nature

SUSPICION OF PUBLIC OFFICIALS

The world has made wonderful strides since the days of Ancient Greece, Egypt and Babylon, in literature and art, science and invention and in knowledge of the universe in general. All this has been due to human endeavor. How strange then, that Human Nature has neither changed nor improved. History shows us that man's loves and hates, his passions, desires and jealousies, his good and bad impulses are the same today as when Alexander the Great ruled the world or when Shakespeare wrote his plays. Of course, we believe the world is growing better but that is due to individual effort and growth and not because Human Nature has changed.

Suspicion of those in authority has always been a peculiarity of old Mr. Human Nature. In ancient times he was often justified in his suspicions as indeed he is today. We elect men to office and then begin to suspect them of every sort of wrong-doing. Old Human Nature believes that if a man is in a position of authority he is dishonest, tricky, a grafter, always trying to "put something over" on those he should serve. Surely it cannot be that the old man is judging others by what he would do himself if he had the chance.

Recent events at Washington have proved Mr. H. Nature to have been right in several cases and it is a good thing for the country, in spite of the scandal that attaches to the investigations, to have conditions brought to light.

And yet it is too bad that a man who accepts office from a high-minded sense of duty, often at the expense of his own personal affairs, must be subjected to attacks varying from mere whispers and insinuations to downright vilification. It has come to the point where good, honest patriotic citizens hesitate to stand for public office because it means dragging their names in the dirt. Few but machine politicians seek office these days, much to the detriment of our government.

This trait of suspecting and criticizing and vilifying those in authority is one old Human Nature will never relinquish. It is a good trait and a bad one. At times it leads to beneficial results, at others it proves disastrous and tragic. It has rightfully exposed the dishonest and wrongfully ruined the upright. The old man is no respecter of persons.

If only Human Nature were a better judge of character. If only it were possible for him to distinguish between the good and the evil. If only those who want to serve honestly and faithfully could have his co-operation instead of his ridicule and his vilification we should have better men in office and better government in city, state and nation. But the old man cannot change and he seems not to want to change.

A Thought That Came Today

By HARVEY E. WESTGATE of Glendale

LINCOLN SPEAKS TO US

Abraham Lincoln is dead, you say?
Ah no, my friend, I saw him today.

I met him this morning,
Right out on the street,
As he greeted a workman
He happened to meet.

It wasn't, of course,
His own flesh and bones,
But the spirit was there,
And so were his tones;

And I said to myself,
As his spirit passed by:
"He's much like the man
Who never will die."

For isn't it true
That the kindness he taught,
His deep love of justice
And wrongs that he fought;

His wisdom, his courage,
And jewels from his pen,
Will live on forever
And blossom in men?

Abraham Lincoln is dead, you say?
Ah no, my friend, I saw him today.

I met him this morning,
Right out on the street,
As he greeted a workman
He happened to meet.

For Easter

April is the month when the world turns out in gala array to enjoy the joyous springtime.

Under the magic wand of Mother Nature the world out-of-doors is beginning to acquire its richest garb and gayest humor, proclaiming Eastertime and springtime and the coming of summer.

It is a glorious time in Southern California, for then it is that the sun, which shines the year round, seems to shine a bit brighter; and the birds' songs seem a bit sweeter; and the flowers a bit prettier; and all of us a bit happier.

Easter time is a time of awakening to things beautiful. It is a time when the gray days and deep, somber colors of fall and winter are passe and the world has progressed to the delicate pastel tints and vivid brightness of spring and summer.

It is a time when art, expressed in every phase of human activity, is fresh and new and in strict accord with the season's modes.

Young and old alike are eagerly anticipating Easter and the busy whirl of social activities that follow Lent, and the vacation days that are but a few weeks distant.

Inspiration comes for the beautification of the home as well as for following the dictates of Dame Fashion as to dress. Both desires will find fulfillment in the world of spring and summer fashions, for they are happily combined in expressing the ideal and real, the artistic and the practical. Not a practical feature has been sacrificed to accomplish extraordinary beauty.

Each Southern California home rests in a natural flower garden of beauty and color, and Dame Fashion seems to have clipped some of the flowers and colors and transplanted them into the lovely materials for spring frocks.

And from this garden of spring fashions many lovely things can be picked for Easter Sunday, April 20, 1924.

They are all ready, gloriously colorful, delightfully individual and distinctly fashion right, the Easter modes.

One of the cleverest things Fashion does this spring is to combine colors, and the clever woman will find much satisfaction in this artistic feat. There are the new high colors, powder blue, artichoke green, canary yellow, lacquer red and others that lend artistic touches in various ways to the new modes.

So, whether Milady be the dark Carmen type or a demure Colonial maid, or any charming type of femininity between the two, she will be in her element in the spring wardrobe.

For her, Dame Fashion presents a most intriguing collection of styles, announcing that Easter is here and now is the time that the consideration of her spring and summer wardrobe is of serious moment.

Choice of the Easter day outfit is, of course, first in everyone's mind and its successful selection should be made with two things in mind. First, be sure that it is style right and has something very new about it. Second, be sure that it suits your own individuality and is becoming.

And in all the hurry and bustle of Easter plans for the home and personal wardrobe, remember that springtime is also the day of roller skates, marbles and jumping ropes—outdoor days, sunshine days. It is always well to remember the kiddies early in the season. Each of their little garments, whether for play or dress, seems born of sunshine, so loved by all the kiddies.

Then, with winter swept out of the home, what fun it is to dress up for the bright spring and summer months. Countless are the modes for every type of home and something new here, and a bit of the brightening up there will make the home a bit more liveable for Easter time and vacation days.

Fashion-rightness should be the goal, whether in search of something for the beautification of the home, or additions to the personal wardrobe, and at this Easter time one finds it impossible to resist any temptation that is fashion-right, according to the dictates of the mode.

The "Pride in Appearance" movement is today sweeping the country. Everywhere men are paying more attention to clothes. They demand better clothes and buy them with greater care than ever before.

This movement is the recognition of an obvious fact that has sometimes been overlooked: That clothes are important to every man, and that every man owes it to himself, his family and his position to dress well.

Clothes are important because of the influence they have on others. In fact, clothes are as important for any man who wishes to create a good impression as good manners or correct speech! Business men and professional men, who must create good first impressions if they are to succeed, know this and are, therefore, always well dressed. A man who calls at a business office in a shabby suit of clothes is seldom likely to get a hearing. A doctor who makes a call without being neat and trim in appearance is hardly likely to inspire confidence. A young man looking for a position is more likely to get it if his clothes give the impression that he is dependable and regular in his habits.

Clothes are important also for the effect they have on the man who wears them. A man who is certain his clothes look well meets the world with greater confidence than one whose clothes do not. Good clothes give one ease and poise, both essential to success.

It is the realization of these facts that his given rise to the "Pride in Appearance" movement. No man today cares to be conspicuous in a crowd by being incorrectly dressed. On the contrary, he takes pride in the correctness of his appearance. And as a result he insists on correct clothes, and knows more about them. He is no longer satisfied that a suit of clothes should wear well. It must also be well tailored and correctly cut. He picks a hat or shirt not as an item in itself, but with care to see that it looks well with the suit or overcoat with which he intends to wear it. He has discovered that a presentable appearance is not a matter necessarily of buying more clothes or spending more money, but of buying more carefully and insisting on greater values.

Of course, "Pride in Appearance" will mean different things to different men. The business man must of necessity be more conservative than the young man. His clothes must convey the idea of solidity and dependability. The young man, provided he exercises good taste always, can afford to be more independent and his clothes will have more dash to them. But for every man, "Pride in Appearance" means that he will present a correct appearance on every occasion.

Only Three Shopping Days Then Easter!

Easter Sunday gives everyone a reason for looking his best. No one need feel conspicuous in new clothes on that day. To be well dressed will be the rule. Many celebrate the occasion by an entirely new outfit just as the Chinese observe their new year. A happy custom that all may indulge in with mental and spiritual uplift a sure result.

Glendale stores are prepared as never before to help you. Stocks of new merchandise are now at their best. Styles were never more becoming and practical. Prices are lower than they have been for some time. Shopping in Glendale is such a delightful experience that people from our neighboring cities come here in large numbers.

It is pleasant and profitable to trade in Glendale.

OFFICER HURT IN CRASH IMPROVES

Merle G. Collins' Leg Broken In Collision With Car In Ivanhoe Hills

Motor Officer Merle G. Collins is resting easily at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital today following severe injuries received yesterday afternoon on Glendale boulevard in the Ivanhoe Hills.

Collins, returning from Los Angeles, attempted to go around a truck ahead of him, and when alongside of it, the driver swerved to avoid a hole in the road, pushing the officer into a car driven by E. F. Sanders, secretary of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, coming from the opposite direction.

Collins was thrown from his machine to the roadway. Mr. Sanders picked him up, and rushed him to the hospital, where an X-ray showed that he had two bones in his left leg just above the ankle fractured, and was suffering from numerous cuts and bruises. An anaesthetic was administered and the bones set.

The officer had been in Los Angeles on business connected with the police department, and was hurrying back to Glendale when the accident occurred. He was traveling fast and the force of the crash was so great that he is very fortunate his injuries were not more serious.

In Glendale, where the stability of our growth and welfare rests upon the approval of the people who reside in and visit our city, it is peculiarly essential that our system for enforcing traffic laws be maintained and developed to the highest point of courteous, fair-play efficiency. In making the statement that the present system is ineffective and does not merit the approval of the motoring public, I am confident that I am voicing the opinion of other fair-minded residents in the City of Glendale. The present system may be efficient as far as "getting the money" is concerned, but it is not even suggestive of efficiency, courteousness or fair play if it is maintained for the purpose of reducing traffic violations to a minimum.

Let's change the system before it is too late—before Glendale secures the reputation of being an unfriendly city. Such a reputation would not only retard our growth, but make our city one to be shunned by the motoring public. Compel our traffic officers to work out in the open, or if they prefer the side streets, keep them off the wide boulevards and let them collect revenue from the traffic violators on our side streets—and in so doing they will increase their department's present income.

Ask any property owner or merchant in Glendale.

COMMENT That's All

Honor To Major Martin
Advertising Is Investment
The News Gives Service
Need Replacement Bureau

By Gil A. Cowan

The United States army world fliers already are in trouble with Major Martin missing. It is serious to lose a commanding officer and if his life is lost there is every probability that the trip will end. In view of the treacherous weather of the last few days there is little wonder that so frail a boat as an airship should not survive the rigors of the Arctic.

Flying, however, is becoming more and more practical. There was a day when Glendale thrilled at the sight of an aviator overhead. Now a half dozen planes make this city their home port and go skimming the southland o'er, as a poet might put it.

It is to be hoped that Major Martin will be spared to have the credit for the greatest aerial achievement—that of circling the globe and bring that glory back to the United States for it will be remembered that the Wright brothers were first successful inventors of airplanes.

Glendale takes upon itself the task of raising a $50,000 advertising fund. It ought to be $100,000 or more, for there are enough good points about this city to be listed that would fast eat up a modest appropriation. The slogan of the campaign for money should paraphrase a well-known saying:

"So I took the $50,000 and bought my home town some printers' ink."

Advertising is a wise investment at this time. Glendale has the goods to sell and all it will need is the proper exploitation to keep moving apace as the fastest growing city in America. The first response to the call for money must have been gratifying and there should be no urging. Public-spirited citizens should step forward with their quota for making this a bigger and better city.

Ahem! Did you see The Glendale Evening News major leagues' opening baseball extra last night? It was a knockout, with the very latest from the National, American and Coast leagues, including the story of the ball game in Los Angeles. It was the only evening paper sold in Glendale last evening to have ALL the games.

With three news services—the International News leased wire, the Southland News service and the Central Press Association, not to mention any other sources, this paper is equipped to give the public everything it wants in the way of current information.

If you will compare The Glendale Evening News with any other paper you will find it is a leader. It is an independent, home-owned and home-controlled publication that is not a supplement, or a wrapper, or an insert.

The Glendale Evening News is complete within itself. You will do well to recommend it to newcomers. You will profit by using its advertising columns.

Vocational placement is one of the large problems in the Southland. Thousands of newcomers from every state in the nation and every country in the world come to California each month. They are representatives of every trade and profession while many have no trade at all.

Like all other immigration there are rich and poor, the idle and the energetic, the sick and the well. However, all have their problems. The more wealthy seek safe investments in property and business. The poor want work and a place to live. The idlers want a place in which to pass their time, the energetic want an opportunity to make good, the sick want attention, and the well want to keep so.

To revert to the problem, however, there is a need for the civic organizations to unite in the establishment of a placement bureau which will consider the newcomers' problems and give muchly needed advice. As it is now many strangers fall into the hands of charlatans who abound in any rapidly growing section.

False hopes, delusive statements, poor investments and the like are placed before an innocent public and California awakes to find them actually suffering because of lack of advice.

Real benefits will result from a well-established, comprehensive bureau for the induction of our new citizens. And much criticism of the Southland would be eliminated through this channel.

Urges Observance of Fire Prevention Week

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—Urging the observance of forest protection week, proclaimed by President Coolidge for the week of April 21 to 27, H. S. Bissell, president of the Southern California Conservation Association, has pointed out the particular needs for fire protection of California forests. At the present time the state contains nearly 15 per cent of the remaining virgin timber of the entire country. This is valued at about $750,000,000 and keeps engaged one-tenth of the wage earners.

Fire takes an annual toll of millions every year. The majority of fires are man caused. Over 4,000,000 people visited the forests in California last season. The number of persons and the consequent fire hazard is increasing every year. The protection of the Southern California watersheds has been taken up as the special work of the Southern California Conservation Association, which is actively engaged on its various phases at the present time.

MRS. TOLL LAUDS GLENDALE WOMEN

Recent District Convention Theme of Letter to Club Members

The entire city of Glendale will share in the happiness of the Tuesday Afternoon club women in a letter received from Mrs. Charles H. Toll, president of the Los Angeles District, California Federation of Women's clubs, expressing her appreciation as president, for the success of the recent convention in Glendale.

The letter, read at the club meeting yesterday, says:

"Beloved Tuesday Afternoon club: You have won an enduring place in the regard and the memory of our District club women. You have challenged their wonder by your ability to carry forward so smoothly and so courteously and so intelligently and well the affairs pertaining to the entertainment of a large convention.

"They enjoyed your president, they have appreciated the services of all workers, they have admired your clubhouse.

"Personally I have found so much quiet, delightful efficiency, such responsiveness, such co-operation, that were I to attempt to enter into details I would never have done.

"And so I shall conclude this note by saying that you have attained a mark that it will be hard to reach in future like gatherings.

"The entire District board unites with me in sending to your gracious and beloved president and to the club membership, especially remembering the committee chairmen for their work, a thousand thanks and expression of most sincere appreciation for all your untiring services so delightfully rendered."

Presents President At Ebell Club Meet

Mrs. Harry S. McCormack of 624 North Brand boulevard, corresponding secretary of the Los Angeles District, California Federation of Women's clubs, attended the Highland Park Ebell club yesterday morning, where she was privileged to introduce to the club company Mrs. Lydie D. Lawhead, president of the Northern District, California Federation of Women's clubs.

Mrs. Lawhead spoke in observance of "Better Homes Week."

Some interesting facts concerning her own home life are given by Mrs. McCormack. While Mrs. Lawhead has never had any children of her own she has reared in her home nine boys and three girls and has given her name to one boy.

Enemy of Rooster Presents Solid Rank

But I wish you'd go some other place to hold your hen conventions.

"A LIGHT SLEEPER."

All Anti-Rooster

Here is another anti-rooster letter received by the Rooster Editor of The Glendale Evening News, and not a single epistle today from a rooster booster. This one reads:

"I am for a 'rooster ordinance' I love 'Chanticleer' in all his pride and majesty but he has no place on a small city lot. The owner may be able to sleep through his hideous crowing, but what of your neighbor, Mr. Rooster Owner? He may be a tired business man with jangled nerves or an overtired housewife. They are entitled to their rest in the early morning hours, when the vitality is at its lowest ebb and rest is so beneficial to their comfort and happiness and efficiency for the coming day. None of us need a rooster to wake us at three in the morning, neither can we all be expected to go to bed at sundown in order to feel perfectly happy and ready to be awakened at that unseemly hour.

We workers through the long day need to read and improve our minds, or go to a good lecture, or visit a friend or any pleasant diversion in the evening, and not be hampered with the thought that we must get to bed in time to get up with our neighbors rooster.

"Also think of the high rents, also of the high purchase price of these small homes of ours. We should not maintain a nuisance that is a detriment to our neighbors.

But as to the rooster, if one wants chickens, let the flock be confined to a few hens. The rooster eats more than he is worth. Besides, the hens lay much better without a rooster and the eggs keep fresh longer. Also if you want to raise baby chicks, it is cheaper to buy them already hatched than to feed a rooster. And last but not least, you should let your neighbor have his sleep. Think it over "Mr. Rooster Owner." Don't turn people out of Glendale!

"MARY JAYNE ROE."

Now, you rooster boosters, sit down and write the Rooster Editor of The Glendale Evening News your side of it. The antis'll get you if you don't watch out!

rectly to organized play.

Reduces Accidents

"Reports from some of the cities showed that playgrounds had been effective in reducing street accidents to children at play. An example of this was found last summer at Lewiston, Maine, where citywide recreational activities were shared in by 118,000 persons, mainly children. Not one death or drowning of a child at play was reported during the summer.

"The many other activities reported by cities included the use of athletic badge tests, community singing, block parties, dramatics, music memory contests, holiday celebrations, industrial athletics, winter sports, organized hiking, horseshoe tournaments, marble tournaments and art activities."

worker in France during the war.

Mrs. Ferbeck, who is a member of the club, is an artist of exceptional ability, and since some of her finest work is china painting, the club women were interested in her talk on "The Art of China Painting."

China Painting

Indicative of what a wonderful art china painting really is, were two beautiful pictures done by Mrs. Ferbeck on china, hung on display in the banquet room of the clubhouse. They have been declared by critics as perfect work both as to expression of figure and fine detail.

In the few minutes allotted to her, Mrs. Quayle attempted to tell something of "Housekeeping in France" as she found it in her work.

Both during the noon hour and in the afternoon Mrs. Campbell took pleasure in telling of the splendid work done by Mrs. A. A. Barton, secretary-hostess of the club, and Mrs. C. J. Higging, chairman of the checking room during the convention. Inadvertently these two names were not mentioned by Mrs. Campbell the night of the banquet.

Check for $400

A special feature of the afternoon meeting was the presentation by Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, chairman of ways and means, of a check for $400 to the treasurer. This makes $7,125.59 the ways and means committee has raised to date this year. Of this amount $3,000 has been raised through the clubhouse kitchen.

That Glendale is a practical user of community service and spirit, was splendidly demonstrated durnig the recent club convention, was the compliment paid Tuesday Afternoon club women and the city of Glendale yesterday afternoon by Dr. Marian Tracie Whiting, talented and versatile president of the South Side Ebell club of Los Angeles.

Dr. Whiting, whose name and talent are known nation-wide by her entertainment in army camps during the war, needed no introduction to Glendale club women. Her subject was announced as "Community Service" and following an eloquent preface, she entertained the club women with serious and humorous stories and songs and they were loathe to let her go after her final number.

At the club meeting next week reports will be given from curators of departments and the annual election held.

Admiral Coontz, commander of the American fleet, made a formal call on President Porras of Panama recently.

So prices have been slashed unmercifully. Profits and cost have been utterly forgotten. We must have immediate action and the quickest way we know of to accomplish this is to give the people values that are simply irresistible. Every piece of merchandise on sale is taken from our regular stock, and carries with it our usual "satisfaction or money refunded" idea of merchandising. Remember, that this advertisement contains just a few of the hundreds of great bargains our store is bursting with. Many of the items are limited, so don't delay. SUNLAND

C. C. TO DISCUSS ENGINE PURCHASE

Work of Lighting Committee Will Be Explained In Report at Meet

Reports on the progress being made by the committee working on the lighting district are expected to be made at the meeting of the Sunland Chamber of Commerce some time this week. Fire protection will also be discussed with a view to arriving at some decision as to what kind of an engine will be purchased for the district. A. Adams, Jr., of the lighting committee, says that the territory tentatively considered for annexation to the lighting district contains about 200 acres and takes in practically all the subdivided area in the valley not already included in the Tujunga street lighting district.

Permission to plant athel trees along the state highway (Michigan avenue) from the east line of Tujunga to the west line of Sunland has been received by the Sunland and Tujunga Chambers of Commerce and the Valley Center Improvement league. These organizations petitioned the state highway commission several weeks ago for this permission after the Valley Center Improvement league had succeeded in arousing considerable interest in the plan. The trees need little attention and make ornamental relief to the barrenness of the highway.

Ship Canned Olives

Four carloads of canned olives were shipped east from the Sunland ripe olive cannery in the past three weeks. In addition to the sales on the coast. Each car carried the name of Sunland to the eastern terminus. The cannery now employs forty people in the work of curing and canning olives. The season run will be completed in June, at which time the employes will be entertained at a picnic, an annual affair given by the management.

Tonight the Monte Vista Parent-Teacher Association is giving a Father and Son party at the school auditorium. A special program has been arranged for the enjoyment of the men.

At the last meeting of the association Mrs. Knudson was appointed chairman of a committee to form a reading circle. The circle met Friday at the home of Mrs. Fred Springer for the first time. The next meeting of the Monte Vista Parent-Teacher Association will be held the first Tuesday in May.

Mrs. Herbert Brandstetter has returned to her Sunland home from San Fernando, where she has been for some time, convalescing from an illness.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kirchner of Simi, former residents of Sunland, are parents of a ten and one-half pound baby girl, born Thursday.

Goes To Texas

John E. Crews, who has been spending the winter with his family in Sunland and completing some literary work, has gone to San Antonio, Texas, where he has business interests.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoerner and Mrs. Lewis have moved to Glendale to make their home.

A new tract has been opened at First and Michigan in Sunland by the subdividers of the Hermosa Vista tract. First street will be widened to sixty feet and the property sold as high class residence lots. The location is near the new Baptist church.

Entertain Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pyle of North Sherman avenue recently entertained a number of guests in celebration of the birthday of their son, Edward M. The decorations used were carried out in three color schemes, blue, pink and white. A four course dinner was served, the table bearing a centerpiece consisting of a birthday cake. Music and dancing were enjoyed.

M. C. Murray died at his Sunland home April 4 at the age of 68. He was a miner in the earlier days and was a familiar figure in Randsburg, Angel Camp, Tonopah, Goldfield and Bodie. He is survived by Mrs. Kate Murray; son, John of Maricopa; daughter, Mrs. Dave Cruise, Sacramento; sister, Mrs. Tom Sullivan, San Francisco. Funeral services were at Inglewood, conducted by Father Tonello of the Tujunga Catholic chapel. Interment at Calvary cemetery, Los Angeles.

Missing Girl Sought In Disguise as Man

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—That pretty 18-year-old Lila Wells is somewhere in Southern California dressed as a boy and seeking a "man's job" on a ranch is the belief of her father, Dr. H. B. Wells. The young woman disappeared from her home here Sunday after a slight argument with her parents and has not been seen here since. Police and private detective agencies throughout Southern California have been enlisted in the search for her.

TUJUNGA

PLAN TO INSTALL EXTRA HYDRANTS

Deputy Fire Warden to Make Survey of District to Settle Location

Following a conference between the committee from the Tujunga-Sunland fire protection district and Deputy Fire Warden Norman C. Johnson, it was decided that the county will order fifty or more fire hydrants for the district and have them installed by the Haines Canyon Water company of Tujunga. A representative of the county fire warden's office will make a survey of the district before the exact location and number of hydrants is determined.

Estimates on installation are from $20 to $40, the larger amount including cutoff valves at each hydrant and the anchoring of the stem in cement. Purchased in lots of 1000, these hydrants cost $9.50 each. It is also planned to purchase 300 or 400-feet lengths of hose and place them at strategic points, to be used in fighting fire in the district with line pressure. This hose will be the one and one-half-inch size.

May Buy engine

Plans for buying a combination chemical and pumping engine are also being considered, to cost between $6000 and $7000. In the event that a pumper is bought, an engineer will be employed to take charge of it. It is also planned to organize a call squad for the fire department, the members being pledged to respond to alarms day or night and receive pay for their services. It is stated that a fire engine can be bought on a five-year payment plan, and it is believed that the cost of equipping and operating a fire district can be kept within a 30-cent tax limit. Several applications have been made for the post of engineman. If the county decides that local applicants are not sufficiently experienced, the officials will send a man of their choice to fill the place.

About twenty Tujunga Kiwanians attended the charter presentation ceremonies at South Pasadena Friday evening, and helped make the new club welcome to the organization. Although but recently organized, the Tujunga club has taken the lead in local affairs. Their first undertaking was the raising of Tujunga's quota in the Boy Scout fund drive, which was accomplished in record time. This club has since helped organize a second Scout troop in Tujunga, one in Hansen Heights, and is now organizing the first troop at Sunland. Rev. W. E. Smith of the Sunland Baptist church will probably be Scoutmaster for this troop.

Mrs. Dorsey to Speak

Next Friday, at the regular weekly lunch meeting of the club, Susan B. Dorsey, superintendent of Los Angeles schools, will be the honor guest and principal speaker. Perry S. Patterson, past international president, recently read a paper on "Faith." The writer of the Book of Proverbs says: "Where there is no vision the people perish." But there can be no worth-while vision without faith.

"Faith is no idle word to be used loosely. Next to integrity there is no force so essential to the personal equipment of the modern business man as faith. No business enterprise of any moment can ever so much as reach first base in the absence of this potent force. The telephone, the telegraph, the steam engine, electrical development, all of the outstanding achievements of mankind have demanded as a prerequisite an all-abiding faith. Faith and vision, combined with integrity, multiplied by industry (plain work), gives an ultimate result—strong personal character. When sound personal character manifests itself generally in Kiwanis, we may rest assured that the source of power of these great spiritual forces as they manifest themselves in Kiwanis has been tapped.

Kiwanis Fundamentals

"These spiritual forces, then are the fundamentals on which Kiwanis rests. The development of an elaborate organization without a vitalization of Kiwanis membership by means of an ever-growing appreciation of the eternal value and worth of these spiritual forces, may easily and insidiously inaugurate reactionary tendencies which will devitalize it and rob it of its potentialities.

It is peculiarly the need of the hour that Kimanis shall appreciate to the full this new appraisal and begin at once to revive in men these potent spiritual forces, the true fundamentals of all personal and business prosperity. All that there is in the world today that is really worth while comes from men filled with and from groups actuated and motivated by these fundamentals of integrity, faith, vision, industry and thrift.

"Business today needs the daily application of the spiritual forces. Some writers say, and correctly, that more religion is needed in business. Many men shy at even such a basic and generic term as religion and think it refers to one's conduct as a pew occupier, not holder, on the Sabbath, but no one can quibble with the terminology of the forces of the spirit, because even the most crystallized of brains will hear a faint splash, at least, in the wells of memory, upon the mere mention of the phrase. Even such a brain may recall a time when all its youthful persistence, integrity, vision, the forces of the spirit—grit—had, was an abundance of faith."

EAGLE ROCK

P.-T. A. TO STAGE PLAY AT SCHOOL

'Idylls of Spring' Chosen as Vehicle to Be Shown On Two Nights

The Eagle Rock Parent-Teacher Association will present a school production, "Idylls of Spring," on Friday and Saturday nights of next week, April 25 and 26, at the Eagle Rock school, under direction of Mrs. Anne Harrison, the author. Proceeds of the production will go into the Parent-Teacher Association fund for work in this district.

Of much interest to members of the Eagle Rock Parent-Teacher Association were the reports of the year's activities as presented at the recent Fathers' night program. Mrs. J. C. Reiter, president, called for reports of committees which showed in a concise manner the progress of the organization.

Mrs. W. S. Quarterman, treasurer, announced that the receipts for the year to date had amounted to more than $1000. Mrs. Carrie Roberts reporting for Mrs. J. B. Squire in regard to the cafeteria, stated that $3000 had been handled so far this year, and that last week $172 had been taken in. The cafeteria feeds on an average, 200 children a day, most of the dishes being served at a cost of five cents to the student.

Mrs. Edith Parker, historian, summed up the activities of the organization and gave a short history. At the time the Eagle Rock Parent-Teacher Association was organized in 1910, seven members were named on the list. The organization has now 376 members. The Parent-Teacher Association was successful in producing the Harvest Home Festival last fall, and has since bought tables and benches, the picture machine and new draperies.

Miss Braasch Honored

Miss Constance Braasch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Braasch, of 126 Canyon trail, has been chosen to represent the Young Artists' club at the convention of the California Music clubs in Berkeley, April 27 to May 1.

This club was organized last week with Miss Margaret Stuckwich as president.

It has already been recognized as an organization with considerable promise for future development. Several new members will be taken in at the next meeting which will take place the last Friday of this month at the home of Mrs. A. R. Rose of Alverne avenue. Any young girls of this district who have talent in musical pursuits either composing or playing, are invited to meet with the Young Artists at that time.

New "E" Car Service

Local residents are pleased with the new improved "E" car schedule that went into effect April 6. The system of running all cars between the hours of 4:25 and 6:01 p. m. through to Townsend avenue, on an average of three or four minutes' headway, seemed to form the solution to the problem to a very great extent, for it has been pointed out, the people who ride seem far more anxious to reach home than they are to reach their daily duties in the morning. During this rush time, according to L. A. Recappe, superintendent of schedules of the Los Angeles Railway company, twenty-five trains will be run on North Eleventh and Broadway to Townsend avenue.

While this new schedule does not follow the plan proposed by the transportation committee, of which H. H. Maxson is chairman, the schedule which has been put into effect is considered to be the most practical considering the territory to be covered and the handicaps under which transportation service is rendered.

Coolidge Advocates State Sovereignty

WASHINGTON, April 16.—President Coolidge yesterday afternoon, sounded a warning to the forty-eight states of the union that observance of "the principle of local self-government" and the policy of "local reflection of nation-wide public opinion," are absolutely essential to the maintenance of the nation and its people.

The president's utterances were made in connection with the unveiling and dedication of the Arizona state stone in the Washington monument. Speaking from a little landing, half way up the towering shaft, he urged retention of state sovereignty, and at the same time a conformity to the needs of the national.

BURBANK

ADVANTAGES OF CITY ARE SHOWN

Advertisement, Story Tell Burbank's Good Points Over Wide Area

Burbank tells the world about itself in the April number of Southern California Business. In addition to the three-page illustrated write-up from the pen of Frank V. Stump, editor of the publication, a full page advertisement appears, in which is a profile map of the city, showing in shaded portions the industrial district, with the location of each of the thirteen larger industries already located here, and in addition telling prospective manufacturers what this city can offer in the way of transportation, labor, materials, fuel and other essential items.

The annual picnic of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs is to be held this year on April 19 at the Sunland park. A large number of Burbank members of the lodges are planning to attend, for these are always very jolly affairs, every hour being filled with entertainment of one kind and another, including music and speaking and athletic contests, many of them funny. Besides Burbank, Glendale, San Fernando and all the valley towns will send delegations, several hundred being expected as the entire picnic crowd.

Kill Cats and Dogs

A total of fifteen kitties and twenty-five fidos have gone to their doom in this city since the foot and mouth disease broke out, is the dire information received from the city hall.

Even licensed pets are in danger, their owners are warned, and if found running at large will be shuffled off this mortal coil, pronto. It therefore behooves those who have valuable cats and dogs to keep them indoors till the epidemic is over.

F. D. Weed, a prominent real estate man and capitalist of Omaha, Neb., was in Burbank last week with a party of friends, looking for the famous Luther Burbank, plant wizard. He was disappointed to learn that the city did not contain Mr. Burbank, but was compensated in finding it, in his own words, "a city progressing along the most systematic development lines of any municipality I have seen in Southern California."

Women's Club Report

The Burbank Women's club, according to the report of Mrs. Walter C. Fisher, president, shows good work and growth, the main points being: A 15 per cent increase in membership in spite of a slight increase in dues; all federal dues paid as well as full quota for the biennial; two departments of general federation contacted direct; six departments of district federation contacted direct, with work under fifteen divisions. Nine district speakers, including district president, have addressed the meetings and the club has representation on district board by chairman of political science department, Mrs. Yale.

SHOWING SPRING STYLES IN SHOES

Specialty Boot Shop Offers Prize for Best Reason For Buying Here

Spring stocks at the Specialty Boot Shop, 126 South Brand boulevard, are now complete, the management announces, and include the very latest styles in men's and women's footwear, a full line of crepe soles being carried for sport wear.

In men's shoes the square toe effect is still predominant and the models are not extremely fancy, being built rather along custom lines. Light tans are considered correct for daytime wear, is the style edict, with black shoes supplanting them after sundown. The Florsheim is a men's leader.

In women's shoes, sandal and strap effects still seem to lead in popularity, although the talk of the trade is plainer models, declares the management of the Specialty Boot Shop. The Selby is carried in many varieties of black satin and all shades of suede, as well as in patent leather and white kid.

Uniform Price

A big feature at the Specialty Boot Shop is the $6.50 price on a full line of men's shoes in all styles and good leathers. A new Florsheim model for full dress and tuxedo wear is being featured.

A prize of any pair of shoes in the shop is being offered for the best essay in 100 words or less on "Why the Specialty Boot Shop is the logical place to buy your shoes." The contest is open to all and closes May 15. Three prominent Glendalians will be the judges.

Plan Enlargement of Hospital at Sawtelle

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—Amendment of a bill now pending before Congress providing for the erection of a new hospital at the Soldiers' Home at Sawtelle, so that the institution will accommodate 1000 patients instead of 500, as originally planned, may result from a movement started in Los Angeles, it was predicted today.

SEARCHERS FIND MISSING FLYER

Commander of Aviators on Around World Flight Located, Report

Later he was able to take off but it was feared that his engine was not in good working order. The three planes did not sight Major Martin during the trip and Lieutenant Erik H. Nelson, in the cruiser New Orleans took command, negotiating the 450-mile journey to Chignik in safety.

In General Hunt

The Hull and the Corry were on their way from Seward to Bremerton, near Seattle, when early this morning they received wireless orders to join in the general hunt for the lost airplane. At 5 a. m. they reached Portage bay and reported hourly that there was no trace of the flyers. Hope that Major Martin might be in Portage bay was practically abandoned when suddenly the flash came that he had been found and, with his mechanic, was safe.

Reports that a lone airship had been seen off Cape Igvak, west of Kodiak island, at the entrance to Portage bay, gave searchers a sense of direction, without which it might have been a hopeless task to conduct a search in the many bays and inlets which mark the Alaskan coast.

The next scheduled hop of the flyers is from Chignik to Dutch harbor, a distance of 400 miles, but plans have been set aside temporarily until Major Martin rejoins his companions.

Commander of Flyers Suddenly Disappears

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Major Frederick L. Martin, leader of the army round-the-world flyers, is missing and may have been lost in Alaskan waters, according to a cablegram received here this morning by the army air service.

Major Martin was flying second in the formation last night when he dropped out of the flight, according to the meassage. He was believed to have landed in a bay south of the Aleutian islands.

Destroyers from Seward have been dispatched to comb the waters for trace of the missing aviator, the message said, and in addition his comrades are circling the area for a sight of him or his machine.

Official Report

The report on Major Martin being missing was sent by two of his fellow officers on the flight, Lieutenants Nelson and Smith.

They reported the flight chief was last seen headed west near Cape Igvak, in Northwestern Alaska. The waters of Kialagiak and Portage bays, both contiguous to Cape Igvak, are being searched.

At the time Major Martin dropped out of the flight, Lieutenant Nelson was leading it from Seward into Chignik, their scheduled stop for last night. Nelson, the message said, did not realize the commander had dropped out for some time after his disappearance.

The other three planes landed at Chignik in good condition at 4:30 p. m.

Telegrams have been dispatched to Kananak to rush boats to aid in the search if there are any available in the port.

U. S. Destroyers Aid In Hunt for Lost Flyer

SEATTLE, April 16.—According to advices received at Bremerton naval headquarters, the destroyers Hull and Corry, which were in the vicinity of Seward, Alaska, proceeding back to their base here, turned back early today to search for Major Frederick L. Martin, commander of the United States army around-the-world flyers.

The destroyers, the report here said, heard the wireless advices that Major Martin had failed to reach Chignik with the other three flyers and started the search on their own initiative.

Assistant Organist At Glendale Theater

With the addition of Mrs. Zoula C. Hagood as assistant organist at the Glendale Theatre, announced today by Manager William A. Howe, the musical staff of this theatre is now complete.

Mrs. Hagood will preside at the console of "Southland's greatest organ" during the rest periods of Paul Carson, first organist, thus providing uninterrupted musical programs at each performance.

As a pianist and teacher of music of recognized ability, and a charter member of the Glendale Music club, Mrs. Hagood comes to the Glendale Theatre following a study of the organ that bespoke her success in advance.

DENVER, Colo., April 16.—With a highly ornate diploma, declaring he had graduated with honors from the Flint College of Hypnotism, a correspondence school of Cleveland, Ohio, tucked under his arm, Jesus Sanchez, of La Junta, Colo., walked into the office of Dr. David A. Strickler, secretary of the state board of medical examiners, and announced that he was ready for his license to practice in this state. His alma mater, however, was not one accepted by the board in lieu of examinations. He intends to take the medical test after he has brushed up on his English.

THAW SANE, IS EXPERT'S BELIEF

Fondness for Pet Rabbits No Sign of Unbalanced Mind, Declared

PHILADELPHIA, April 16. — "Harry K. Thaw is a sane man. His liberation will not menace society. The stories about 'Tweedledums' and 'Tootsie' are the flimsiest sort of evidence. His fondness for pet rabbits is no indication of insanity."

Summarized, this was the testimony of another expert alienist, Dr. George Wilson, instructor at the University of Pennsylvania, who examined the slayer of Stanford White on two occasions this morning at the morning session of the trial of Thaw's sanity plea.

"I believe Thaw to be a sane man," the alienist declared, and his belief was substantiated by that of Dr. Charles E. Mills, noted psychiatrist, who testified during the first two days of the trial.

Trial to Extend

A day of testimony by expert alienists in behalf of Thaw was indicated when the third day of his sanity plea trial opened before Judge Monaghan and a jury here today.

Incidentally, it became known that the trial will extend over into next week. An Easter recess will be taken by the court tomorrow that will include Good Friday adn Saturday. Sessions, it was said, would be resumed Monday, April 21.

When Thaw entered the courtroom he was unaccompanied by guards from the Pennsylvania hospital for mental and nervous diseases, where he has been incarcerated since 1917.

BOULDER, Colo., April 16.—The pretty Colorado school ma'am who bobs her tresses does not make the change with the approval of her school superiors. Selecting Jurors to Look Into Oil Leases

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The impaneling of a special grand jury to investigate the Fall-Denby oil leases to Harry F. Sinclair and E. L. Doheny was started here today. Four jurors were selected and a special additional venire of 150 men were ordered to be on hand on April 25 to complete the jury.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S EASTER EGGS

This is the story that Uncle Wiggily told to the animal boys and girls in the Hollow Stump school the day Billie's marbles fell out of his pocket. You remember I promised to tell it to you.

Once upon a time, not so very many years ago, Uncle Wiggily was sitting in his hollow stump bungalow all alone. It was very still and quiet, for Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the rabbit gentleman's muskrat lady housekeeper, had gone out.

All of a sudden there sounded a knock on the door, and the knock was so loud, coming in all the stillness, that Uncle Wiggily almost jumped out of his chair.

"The Fuzzy Fox has come for me!" whispered the rabbit.

But no—this wasn't so. It was only the delivery cat from the grocery store, and he mewed politely and handed Uncle Wiggily a little package.

"Nurse Jane just stopped in our store and bought this," said the grocery cat. "She asked me to bring it to you and to tell you not to forget that Sunday is Easter, and you're to color the eggs."

"Oh, that's so!" cried the bunny in a jolly voice, when he saw there was no Fox to bite him. "I must color the eggs, but where is the colored dye—the red, blue green, yellow, pink and purple colors?"

"The colors are here—in this package," mewed the grocery cat. "That's why Nurse Jane sent them to you—so you can mix up the different colored dyes and get ready for the Easter eggs."

"Thank you, I'll do it," said the bunny. And when the grocery cat was gone Uncle Wiggily took the red powder, the blue powder, the yellow, pink and purple powders, and, mixing each one in a basin of water, he soon had a number of prettily colored dyes for the eggs.

"There ought to be some eggs somewhere in the bungalow," said the bunny to himself. "I'll find them and dip a few in the red, pink, purple, blue and yellow colors to try them. I'll do that before Nurse Jane gets back, and surprise her."

In the ice box Uncle Wiggiyl found some of the eggs Nurse Jane had bought from Mrs. Cluck, the hen lady. Boiling the eggs hard, so if they fell the shells would only crack, the rabbit began to dip them, one at a time, into the Easter dyes.

"I'll make a red egg first," thought the bunny, and he dipped it in that color. And, as he did so, some red dye splashed on his collar. "But that will do no harm," thought Mr. Longears.

Then he dipped another egg in the blue color, and, while he was doing this, some blue splashed on his right cheek.

"But that will do no harm," thought Mr. Longears, and he dipped an egg in the green dye. As he did so some of the green color splattered on his chin. "But who cares for that?" laughed the rabbit.

So he went on dipping and dyeing the Easter eggs, and each time he did so he splashed some color on himself, until, after a while, he looked like a crazy rainbow. Only he didn't know it.

All of a sudden there came another knock on the door.

"That must be Nurse Jane, and she has forgotten her key," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'll let her in."

Thinking it was his muskrat lady housekeeper, the bunny boldly opened the door, and, oh! wasn't he frightened, though, when he seaw the Bob Cat there!

"Ur—um—er—goo—ger," began the rabbit. But the Bob Cat made no effort to come in or bite him. The Bob Cat just looked at the bunny in a queer way and said:

"Oh, excuse me! I thought Uncle Wiggily lived here, but I see he doesn't. I made a mistake!" And the Bob Cat ran away.

"Whew! That was a narrow escape!" whispered the bunny as he sat down in a chair and twinkled his nose. "I wonder why the Bob Cat didn't know me? I must be Uncle Wiggily! Can anything have happened?"

But just then there sounded another knock on the door.

"This, surely, is Nurse Jane," thought the rabbit. But when he opened the door, there stood the Fox.

"Oh, excuse me!" barked the Fox. "I thought Uncle Wiggily lived here, but I see he doesn't! I made a mistake!"

"Well, this is getting more and more strangerous!" whispered the bunny. "I wonder what's the matter with me?" But before he could hop to the glass to look, a third knock sounded. It was the Wolf.

"Can you tell we where Uncle Wiggily has moved to?" asked the Wolf, as he looked at the rabbit. "I thought I'd find him here, but you don't look a bit like him. Never mind! Excuse me, I'll run along, for I must find him."

The Bob Cat just looked at the bunny

"Say, what has happened to me, anyhow?" cried the rabbit. And just then Nurse Jane crept along, heard what he said, and told him:

"Look in the glass!" And when Uncle Wiggily looked he saw that the red, green, blue, yellow, pink and purple dyes had splashed on him so that he looked like a dozen Easter eggs.

"No wonder the bad chaps didn't know me!" laughed the bunny. "But I'm glad they didn't!" Then he washed the red, green, yellow, pink and purple dyes off his ears, cheeks, chin and collar, and when Easter morning arrived the bunny and Nurse Jane gave the colored eggs to the children.

So everyone had a fine time, and, if the trolley car doesn't try to turn a somersault and spill all its money down a crack in the board walk, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the paper hats.

BAD, SAYS GIRL

Rheba Crawford, the Salvation Army captain who won the sobriquet of "The Angel of Broadway" for her soul-saving work in the theatrical white light section of New York a year or so ago, and was allowed to get out of the "army" on account of the publicity, has stirred St. Petersburg, Fla., with similar activities in the hotels and public places. Despite the fact, she says, that modern girls swear, drink gin, play poker and wear little, they are better than the boys, and are just as good or just as bad as the boys want them to be.

Will Borah Aid Coolidge?

Here's a new picture of WILLIAM E. BORAH, the Progressive, whose aid for Coolidge has been won by the president's removal of Harry M. Daugherty from his job as attorney-general, say Washington political observers.

Washington political observers see in the virtual removal from office by President Coolidge of Harry M. Daugherty a move which probably will insure the Republican party the aid of William E. Borah in the forthcoming campaign. There were indications that Borah would retire to his native Idaho and pursue a policy of hands off if Daugherty were allowed to continue as attorney general.

Timely Views

EUROPEAN VIEWS OF ....123 EUROPEAN ERA OF PEACE IN NEAR FUTURE IS FORECAST OF MICHIGAN PROFESSOR

If Prof. Jesse S. Reeves, of Michigan faculty of political science, is correct in his diagnosis of the European situation, peace, prosperity and a return to normalcy are about to become realities. Prof. Reeves, who is an authority on international law has been at work in Paris for several months preparing a series of lectures, to be delivered at The Hague in July.

According to Prof. Reeves, Europe and the world in general was hoping for the virtually impossible in expecting a settlement of the post-war muddle before a certain period of orientation had elapsed. Prof. Reeves believes this period at an end and a decided tendency toward improvement will set in with the issuance of the forthcoming report by General Dawes and the commission of experts.

"It is true that the commissions of experts are hampered because of their lack of power to execute whatever they may decide necessary for the economic reconstruction of Europe," Prof. Reeves said. "Nevertheless, one must not underestimate the value of their report.

Public Opinion Formed

"In the five years which elapsed since the termination of the war public opinion has had time in which to crystalize. Public opinion in America as well as in England will take a decided stand on this report and on the French-German controversy. It is, of course, impossible that any proposed settlement of the reparations problem should meet with both French and German approval—unless such proposal issues from either France or Germany. Indeed, we may expect that the experts' opinion will, in whole or part, be rejected by both countries. But at least it should form the basis for a discussion along new lines:

"First, as I intimated, because public opinion is roused. It remains to be seen in how far either France or Germany dare to go in their rejections. Second, because sufficient time has elapsed to permit us to regard the whole tangle in an economic rather than a political light. The position of the American experts on the commissions would seem to insure this. Third, because the last five years have been most fruitful in changing the French and German viewpoints. They have been hard years, bitter years, but it may be said that Germany at least seems cognizant of what she may and may not safely do in the matter of meeting or avoiding her obligations. And perhaps France also has attended the harsh school of experience and may now realize that intense nationalism may be carried to the point where it will mean national disaster. In other words, it is not unlikely that France, after five years of hopes and fears, endless strivings, threats and punishments—all without result—may now be led to make the best of a very bad situation."

LIBRARY IN DETROIT

One of the most complete violin libraries ever assembled—that owned by the late Maud Powell, American violinist, is now in possession of the Detroit Public library, having been recently turned over to it by H. Godfrey Turner. Mme. Powell died in 1920. In private life she was Mrs. Turner. The library contains several thousand volumes, and scores and parts of every work in importance in the new and old music are included. Mme. Powell was the first artist of note to champion some of the new music, and had one of the finest collections of these later works in existence.

Daily News Letter

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers at Home and Abroad

By GEORGE T. HOOK
For International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—In Hahnemann Medical College anatomy classes a mounted human nervous system is used for the instruction of students. The achievement, considered the only one of its kind in the world, is that of Dr. Rufus B. Weaver, professor of anatomy at the college. It represents eight years of preparation and seven months of delicate dissection.

The nervous system is that of a scrubwoman who had been employed at the Hahnemann Hospital and who was considered by Dr. Weaver the ideal subject for his planned dissection. Upon her death more than eight years ago the body was carefully prepared in alcohol. Eight months ago Dr. Weaver decided the moment was opportune for his great endeavor and commenced dissection of the body, with every faculty concentrated upon preservation of the nervous system intact.

Every day in the week for seven months, oftentimes from early morning until late night, the surgeon proceeded with his intricate work. His scalpel had many obstacles to overcome, and foremost among these was the ever-present danger of the delicate nerves, some barely visible to the naked eye, becoming tangled. In addition, there was the likelihood that crystallization from the zinc chloride preservative might have caused hardening of the nerves, to the ruin of the entire effort.

Finally Dr. Weaver had the nervous system free of all the matter in which it had been encased and mounted the entirety by hand on a black background. A thin veneer of shellac preserves the maze of large and tiny intertwining cords.

Dr. William Pearson, dean of Hahnemann, is authority for the statement that Dr. Weaver's life effort is the only thing of its kind in the world.

Physicians and surgeons and the laity have much to marvel at in the bronschoscopic accomplishments of Dr. Chevalier Jackson, famed specialist in the removal of foreign bodies from the respiratory system. His clinics here in the Jefferson Hospital attract members of the medical profession from near and far.

As is doubtless well known, Dr. Jackson is the inventor of the bronchoscope, the instrument with a tiny electric-light bulb on the end of it that is inserted into the lung of a patient who has inhaled some foreign body, and which has saved hundreds of lives. But it is not commonly known that Dr. Jackson has over a hundred of these bronchoscopes, all of different sizes, to fit variant bronchial tubes.

This assortment of bronchoscopes is in the main responsible for Dr. Jackson's inability to answer hurry calls from cities at a distance from Philadelphia, for if he took a number of the instruments with him there always remains the likelihood that the one needed is "back in Philadelphia." Then, too, transportation, besides being burdensome, would menace their security.

At Jefferson instruction in the use of the bronchoscope is part of the curriculum, and ere long it may be as common in the medical profession as the stethoscope.

A cure for cancer, the scourge of modern civilization, is near, in the opinion of Dr. Edward B. Krumbhaar, a member of the staff of the Philadelphia General Hospital, who recently returned after a six-week special research trip to London.

"We are finding the nature of cancer and laying groundwork for the study of its cure," Dr. Krumbhaar declared. "I am more optimistic than ever this disease may finally be known and destroyed.

"Among the most interesting of recent developments is the discovery an artificial cancer can be created. This was done by painting with tar the skin of a rat. For For five months the skin was painted, and at the end of that time the animal was found to have developed cancer.

"Following these lines it was possible to determine the origin of the disease, as well as the manner in which it was caused."

Who's Who

GEORGE ROUSSOS

George Roussos, the new premier of Greece, is, next to his lifelong friend and chieftain, Eleutherius Venizelos, admittedly the ablest man in the public life of Greece. He created an excellent impression and made many friends in America, while representing his country as minister plenipotentiary from 1916 to 1920.

GEO. ROUSSOS

It was Roussos, incidentally, who was entrusted by his countrymen with the delicate mission of calling upon young King George to leave Greece and to remain abroad.

When he came to America, in 1916, Roussos had been, for some 30 years, the acknowledged leader of the international bar of Egypt, in which capacity he welcomed the late Theodore Roosevelt on the occasion of the latter's visit to Cairo and Alexandria. Roussos enjoyed the warm friendship and the confidence alike of Lord Cromer and of Lord Kitchener, helping them to straighten out many a difficulty in connection with the troublesome problems in dealing with the large foreign population and even with the natives, who held him in high regard, constantly appealing to him for advice in their troubles.

When Venizelos became president of the provincial government of Saloniki he summoned Roussos to his side and besought him to undertake the mission of repr-seenting the Saloniki government in the United States and to obtain for it the same confidence and support that was being accorded by Great Britain and by France. Without a minute's hesitation Roussos turned over his lucrative legal practice in Egypt to his partners and, after prolonged conferences in Saloniki with Venizelos, sailed for New York.

Perhaps the best proof of confidence which he succeeded in inspiring in his government and in his country and among the various administration circles at Washington was the fact that some six months before the armistice the treasury, by the direction of President Wilson, placed a very large sum of money at the servcie of the Venizelos government at Athens.

When he sailed in the spring of 1919 to assist Venizelos in representing the interests of Greece at the Congress of Versailles he was made the object of a manifestation of good-will rather unusual in the annals of diplomacy. Great captains of finance, university presidents, eminent officials, etc., to the number of nearly 200, united in entertaining him in New York at a dinner of godspeed. At the conclusion of the congress he returned here for another twelve months and then was asked by Venizelos, still in power as premier to proceed at once to Constantinople and to there assume the duties of high commissioner of Greece. Before he could reach this post the young King Alexander succumbed to blood poisoning resulting from the bite of a pet monkey and the coup d'etat followed at Athens which brought about ex-King Constantine's return and the temporary withdrawal from public life of Venizelos.

Roussos, deeply disgusted and disheartened, returned to Athens, resumed his practice at the bar, which he has now, once more, abadoned in response to the call of Venizelos and of many of his leading fellow-countrymen.

Thus far it has been impossible to duplicate the chemicals that enable the firefly to light up.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

BOILS

Mrs. E.—Boils are prone to come in crops. One no sooner gets well than another pops out. The old idea that boils are "healthy" because they relieve the system of impurities, is not true. Boils are local infections by germs which are capable of producing pus if they get a chance to multiply sufficiently. These germs are on all skins more or less and ordinarily give no trouble, but if anything happens to lower the tissue resistance, such as certain diseases or local injury, then these germs cuddle down in the sweat glands or the sebaceous (oil) glands and soon begin to multiply and cause pimples and boils and other skin inflammations.

Anything that lowers the tissue resistance, such as fever or anemia, and especially diabetes and kidney diseases, will lower the general vitality of the skin and then these germs will have a breeding place.

Boils are contagious. A person who has a boil not only will give himself more boils, but will give them to others around him, if he does not keep his covered and protected, because the germs after multiplying in a boil seem to be much more virulent. There should be an examination to be sure that the constitutional diseases are not present, although sometimes apparently healthy people will have boils.

The local treatment of boils: Boils can sometimes be aborted by painting with iodin or camphro-phrenique (a solution made of equal parts of camphor and carbolic acid). Another mode of aborting boils is the winding of a tiny bit of absorbent cotton around the sharpened end of a wooden toothpick; dip this into carboci acid and stick it into the head of the boil. Do not squeeze them! That simply makes them worse by injuring the tissues around. After coming nearly to a head, some physicians advise lancing.

Do not poultice boils. Heat and moisture are apt to produce a crop of boils around the poulticed area. Hot compresses of boric acid will give relief to the pain and will help bring the boil to a head.

They must be kept covered after discharging, and a little pad of cotton soaked in a strong boric acid solution (two teaspoonfuls to a cup of water) can be strapped on them. Then for some time after the boils are apparently cured, continue to bathe the spots with this saturated solution of boric acid. Also rub some all over the body to kill off any of the stray germs.

"Dear Doctor: I have reduced 20 pounds in three months. I am still 25 pounds overweight and many people fail to recognize me on the street. But my neck is so thin! My legs and thighs seem to hold all my surplus fat now. I love sports and long to wear knickers, but nothing like that for me. How I have suffered because of my fat legs."

As all the surplus fat is off your face now, if you continue your reduction the rest will have to go. You can pay especial attention to the exercises of the legs and thighs—kicking, long, brisk walks with a long stride, rising on your toes, bicycling, etc. Rolling on the floor will help your thighs. Heavy massage may help and the electric vibratory chairs and the rolling machines such as you find in reducing establishments can give you some help. I would get off the excess, at any rate, and then if you find your face is too thin, you can plump up a little.

Baffling Murder Mystery

Picture of MRS. MAUDE BAUER, taken in her wedding gown. She left her automobile, which was stalled, in company with a man in another automobile. Later her body, showing signs of a beating and a shot, was found by the roadside.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Again the New York police are struggling with a baffling murder mystery. They have followed a score of clues to the murderer of Mrs. Bauer up blind alleys.

Unusual circumstances surround the crime. While out driving with her children and her mother, her car was stalled. The driver of an automobile stopped and offered to take her to a farmhouse to telephone for aid. With a smile to her loved ones, she drove off with the man. Sometime later her bleeding body, beaten and shot, was found by the roadside.

She was the third woman to fall a victim on the lonely roads of Staten Island in recent months.

Just a year ago Miss Bessie McMahon was found dead beside a highway on the island, her body brutally beaten and stabbed. It evidently had been thrown by an automobile.

Miss Irene Blandino met her death in much the same way. Her broken body was found on the opposite side of the road where that of Miss McMahon was picked up. The police believe a degenerate or maniac is responsible for all three crimes, but they admit they haven't a tangible clew to work on.

CHAPPED LIPS

Chapped lips are not entirely a winter complaint, in fact many people suffer far more on windy spring days or under a hot summer sun. The best way to prevent this annoyance is to always carry a tiny lipstick tube of cold cream in your handbag. This is not make-up, and when it rubs off, as of course it will, it will not leave a tell-tale red stain. These little uncolored lipsticks cost only 10 to 25 cents, and as one lasts three months or more it certainly cannot be called an extravagance.

The real annoyance of chapped lips is that one cannot help worrying at a loose bit of skin, so that if you are not careful a mouth that is seriously sore may result from the slightest exposure to a cold, wet wind, or to a hot sun. The way to guard yourself against that is to rub the lips with either a white lipstick of cold cream, not only to heal, but also to keep down the dry particles of skin, which otherwise will worry you. You won't want to bite the lips if they are smeared with some sort of heavy cream.

Some lips are chronically chapped as a result of the nervous habit of biting them. Some soothing cold cream put on at night will help to heal them, though I am afraid the only real cure is to use your will power and force yourself to stop the habit. Sometimes the nervousness that causes this is so extreme that it should be treated medically.

Sores about the mouth or on the lips are usually treated by people as no more serious than ordinary cases of chapping. If they are very large and painful a doctor should be consulted. Little canker sores or small ulcers in the mouth need only be touched four or five times a day with a pure nitrate of silver pencil and they'll soon go. Any antiseptic mouth wash is also good for this condition. A hare lip can be cured now so that it is scarcely visible.

Penelope—It will take a little time, but the daily use of cleansing cream, followed up by washing with a fine soap and warm water, will clear your skin of the blackheads. Never use any preparation on your complexion in which there is cocoa butter. Your weight is all right for your age and height.

Reader—The sensation called "heart burn" comes from indigestion, which probably is what causes you to get short of breath when walking up hill. While this condition is not serious, it should not be allowed to go on, as you will lose weight and your nervous system become affected. Consult the doctor.

Tomorrow—Red Hands

Several women have written to ask for a "just how" receipe for Hot Cross Buns for Good Friday. They will find the following directions reliable:

To Make Four Dozen Hot Cross Buns: (Most housekeepers like to make a generous quantity of these buns so that they may send some of them in to neighbors, or have some left over for the other meals of the day.) Begin by scalding four cups of sweet milk. Turn this hot milk into a large bowl and add to it one cup of granulated sugar, two teaspoons of salt and eight level tablespoons of butter. Let it cool to the lukewarm stage.

When this milk is cooling, break two cakes of compressed yeast into one-half cup of luke-warm water and stir till dissolved. Add this dissolved yeast to the bowl, when the milk has cooled to the tepid stage; also stir in 12 cups of ordinary bread flour, two and one-fourth teaspoons of ground cinnamon, four well-beaten eggs and one-half cup of dried currents. Mix well, then cover the bowl with a clean cloth and place it in a warm spot to rise overnight (it is, of course, to be started on Thursday night.)

On Good Friday morning, at about six o'clock, turn the raised dough out onto a floured board, and pat it down with the hands to one inch in height. Now take a large biscuit cutter and cut it into discs, placing these discs in a well-greased pan about one-half inch apart. When you have cut out four dozen discs (kneading the odds and ends of dough together at the end, and rolling out again into a solid mass so that you can cut it) place the pans in a warm spot for almost an hour, during which period the buns will rise to twice their bulk. Brush over the tops with a mixture of beaten raw egg and sugar, then make a cross on top of each bun with the back (dull edge) of a silver knife. Slip the pans into a hot oven to bake for 20 minutes. Serve for breakfast.

Answer to "X. Y. Z": I do not generally attempt to advise girls on such matters as you write about, as they are not strictly in the housekeeping field; but I can only say that if I were you I should prefer to buy fewer things for my trousseau and have some of that money left over, in a savings bank, when I got married.

You do not really need the evening cape, the elbow gloves, and some of the other "party" garments mentioned on your list. Get along without them! Other girls do. You will be thankful later on, when you have $50 or so for the "rainy day"—which generally comes.

Tomorrow—Directions for Knitting a Beach Cape.

All inquiries addresed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use your full name, street number, and the name of your city and state.—The Editor.

Heart and Home

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

A DIFFICULT QUESTION

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I like a boy who is two years my senior. He gives me pretty gifts and treats me fine when I see him. I have met him several times by accident and he always brings me home and tells me he likes me real well, but he never comes to my house although I have asked him several times. Do you think he likes me? Why does he not come in? He also has my autograph which I would like to have very badly. Would it be proper for me to ask one of his boy friends to get it for me?

BLUE EYES.

It is impossible to say why the boy does not go to your home to call. I should think if he cared very much about you he would only too gladly accept your invitation. I can't see why you place so much importance on your own handwriting. I would not advise you to try to get anything back through a friend of the boy's. If you want something you have given him, ask him directly.

WANTS "STEADY" BEAU

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 17 years old and am considered good-looking. It is easy for me to get acquainted. About three weeks ago I met a boy two years my senior. I liked his appearance. He acts as if he thought a lot of me and I have been machine riding with him three times. He also brings me home.

I asked him if he would go with a "steady girl" and he said it all depended. Please tell me how I can win his love and get him for a "steady fellow." He seems to think more of me than any other girl he has gone with. He is the only one I care anything about.

BETTY-BLUE EYES.

It is not in good taste for you to ask the young man to go with you "steady." As a matter of fact it is not correct to have such an arrangement. When a young man wants a girl for himself he should propose marriage or eles give her the freedom to have other young men friends as well. Be satisfied with the boy as a friend and do not try to rush matters.

LOVE VS. FRIENDSHIP

Dear Mrs. Thompson: A great many of my friends belong to a history club which has interested me for a long time. A month ago they voted in new members because their membership had dropped from people leaving town and being too busy at other things to keep up club activities. A certain young man has been going with one of the girls who was in the club and he has also gone with me. I have never been able to find out whether he liked her or me better and I think she has been in doubt too.

When the new members were voted on she voted against me because she was jealous and I am sure for no other reason. I learned of this from a friend who counted votes. This hurt me very much because I wanted to get into the club.

What would you do if you were in my place? T. S. A.

Doubtless the club has rules for taking in members, and so there is nothing for you to do if, according to the rules of the club, you were turned down. The members of the club who are your friends are the only ones in a position to get you in. They might be able to influence the girl who voted against you to change her mind. It does seem a shame that she should let a personal matter govern her at such a time.

THE GLENDALE

Baby Peggy in "The Darling of New York" shows at the Glendale theatre for the last times today. This is her biggest and best and so carefully has the child star been handled throughout the picture that there is never a moment in the play when the interest lags. Attention is always centered on her or her rag doll, which has such an important significance in the unfoldment of the story.

There is plenty of comedy to balance the drama and the entire picture is filled with entertainment. A sensational fire scene is introduced as the anti-climax to the play, which is well handled.

King Baggot and Raymond I. Schrock wrote the story and Baggot directed the filming.

In addition, Rudolph Valentino in "A Society Sensation" shows at the Glendale theatre for the last times today.

THE GATEWAY

"Icebound," with Richard Dix and Lois Wilson, is the new Paramount feature showing at the Gateway theatre today. William de Mille directed, from the famous Owen Davis play that won the 1923 Pulitzer prize as the best stage drama of the year.

The theme of "Icebound" is the rebellion of youth against the severe family life on a New England farm. The youth, back from the war in France, recalls the warmth and joyousness of the French people and refuses to work the farm as generations of his people have before him. His mother's pleas are in vain and upon her death she leaves her fortune to her step-niece, with the provision that a younger woman of charm can win him back to the family tradition.

FIRST GAME OF SERIES ANNEXED BY TIGERS, 6-1

Angels Unable to Connect With Penner's Slants; Oaks Shut Out

Bill Essick's Vernon Tigers lived up to their advance reputation yesterday and took the opener from the Angels, 6 to 1.

The winners played a swell brand of ball, although the breaks went against the Angels. The high wind, sucking and roaring around the grand stand made the fielding of high fouls well nigh impossible. Deal, Jacobs and Golvin all missed what would ordinarily be easy ones during the afternoon.

Penner, hurling for Vernon, was a mystery to the Los Angeles sluggers. The only man to solve him to any extent was Jacobs, twenty-year-old third baseman, who smacked out two doubles against the left field fence the first two times up. The third time he faced Penner he smeared one to the same location, but Blakesley robbed him of a hit. He was left stranded at second by his team mates who were unable to bring him home.

Uncle "Bim" Myers, Marty Krug's selection, did not fare so well at the hands of the Tigers, and was relieved by Walters in the sixth.

Gordon Slade, who played short for the White Sox all winter was in the Vernon line-up. He made a wonderful spear back in left field in the third, and beat out an infield hit, so his friends went home tickled.

'Boston Tar Baby' Will Box Tonight At San Fernando

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—Sam Langford, veteran colored boxer, will make his appearance at San Fernando tonight, when he meets Jim Barry, flashy fighter of the nearby valley town. In addition to this bout, which is the headliner, five others round out a good card.

YOUTHFUL GOLFER IN FIRST ROUNDS

Russell Thompson, 15, Only Seven Strokes Behind Experts In Meet

Russell Thompson, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Thompson, 400 West Broadway, playing in the Southern California amateur championship tournament at the Annandale Golf club yesterday, turned in a brilliant card of 83, well up among the leaders in the first round. He was but 7 strokes behind George Von Elm and Harlow Hurley, medalists, with 76.

The Glendale boy's showing in the face of the strong wind was considered exceptional, and he was congratulated by all the veterans in the play. He tied the scores of such cracks as C. B. Hodge, Fred Wright, Jack Neville and Hugh Kirk.

His elder brother, Harold, is also a golfer with a wide reputation, as are all members of the family. The golfing family belongs to the Oakmont Country club.

The Yanks got away running by disposing of the Red Sox, 2 to 1, Wambsganss kicking the game away in the ninth with successive errors behind Ehmke. The Sox got only two hits off Shawkey and Hoyt.

George Sisler, the well known invalid, found his impaired health of such a handicap that all he could do was to lead his Browns to a 7 to 3 victory over the White Sox in his debut as manager. The sick man, playing his first game since 1922, handled fifteen chances at first base, drove the first run in the opening inning and later the run that broke the tie in the fifth.

The old Giant bugaboo, pitching weakness, again cropped up, the Dodgers driving Ryan from the box and beating the Giants 3 to 2. Reuther left-handed the champions to death.

OXY TRACK STARS ON EASTERN TRIP

By LARRY RAYMOND,
Of The Evening News Staff.

Coach Joe Pipal, Trainer Pete Poole, and ten of the fastest tracksters on the Occidental College varsity team have left Berkeley for Lawrence, Kansas, and Philadelphia where they will represent the Tiger institution on the cinderpaths. This is the largest aggregation from the Pacific Coast that has ever travelled east to compete in a track meet.

Next Saturday, April 19, the Oxy team will vie for honors in the University of Kansas relay carnival. Immediately after the combat they will depart for Philadelphia for the big international track festival at the University of Pennsylvania Over five-hundred universities, colleges, junior colleges, and prep teams are entered in the carnival scheduled for April 25 and 26.

Stars Making Trip

The personnel of the Oxy invaders includes Cliff Argue, Phil Buckman, Bud Nash, sprinters; Captain Phil Ellsworth, Johnny Powers, Kenny Montgomery, Tony Spangler, Herb Morey, and Nick Carter, middle distance men; and Roy Goodenough, pole vaulter of note.

The various events which the Tigers will take part in have been announced as follows:

On April 25 and 26 in the Penn relays, Argue, Buckman, and Nash will again run the century, and Goodenough the pole vault. The American championship medley event will find Powers running the 440, Spangler and Buckman each the 220, and Carter the mile. On Saturday the fourman relay team, Buckman, Spangler, Ellsworth, and Powers, will try to cop that event. Spangler, Argue, Buckman, and Powers will run the four-man half mile relay.

GLENDALE HURLER PUZZLE TO YANKS

Ehmke, Pitching for Boston In Opener, Comes Close To Shutout

BOSTON, April 16.—Howard Ehmke of Glendale, alone and single-handed, came mighty near winning a ball game against the world's champions in the opening game of the 1924 season here yesterday. Bill Wambsganss, formerly of Cleveland, fumbled two ground balls in the ninth inning and allowed the Yankees to score two runs, their first of the game, which were enough to win. The final count was 2 to 1.

In addition to holding Babe Ruth and company to five scattered hits, he drove in Shanks with a timely single for the only Red Sox run. Shawkey and Hoyt held the Red to two hits. It was a tough game for Ehmke to lose.

In a free scoring game the Reds came up from the rear and beat the Pirates, six to five in the ninth when Meadows became generous, passed two men and allowed Burns to single and Roush to loft a terrific fly to the outfield. Wright, the shortstop, kicked two away.

Starting exactly where they left off the Braves and Phils, chronic also-rans, staged a six to six tie in eleven innings.

Sensational fielding by Cobb, Speaker and Heilman, and Blue's home run over the center field fence in the sixth, featured the Tigers' 4 to 3 decision over the Indians.

SIG-RALPH ROWS AT ASCOT CLOSED

Bentel Sends Out Word from Hospital in Pasadena Race Was Final

The Ralph DePalma and Sig Haughdahl argument is a closed incident so far as the Ascot Speedway management is concerned. From the Pasadena Hospital President George Bentel called attention to announcement he made two weeks ago at the time of signing Sig and Ralph for Sunday's match, to the effect that the result would have to be final.

To a host of telephonic inquirers Bentel suggested that if the friends and backers of the two pilots are not satisfied with the result they might arrange with the Fresno track management to stage a race in the Raisin City to take the place of the recently abandoned spring classic which was scheduled for April 24.

"Our schedule is arranged for the next three weeks," said Bentel, "and we cannot make any change in our plans. In addition, we do not want to stage another match race where the feeling and partianship is so intense. It is not only difficult, but impossible, to please our patrons when they are so divided in opinion as to the merits of two men and two cars. No result would ever please the losers."

Bathing Beauties

For next Sunday, which is Easter, there will be staged at Ascot, in conjunction with a ten event motorbike and automobile racing program, a bathing beauty parade with an atmospheric tableau "Easter at the Beach" presented in front of the grandstand. More than 150 bathing girls will participate in the parade with a huge diving tank providing the setting for a number of Fred Cady's girl diving champions and Duke Kahanamoku in a series of spectacular diving exhibitions.

HIGH TEAM PLAYS MONROVIA SQUAD

Butterfield's Ball Tossers Working Out Daily at School Diamond

Although defeated in their first game of the season against Covina last Friday, Coach Howard Butterfield's Glendale high school ball tossers have had worlds of pep this week, and are going right out after the scalps of Monrovia this week. The game is scheduled for April 18 at Monrovia.

Practice has been hindered owing to the necessity of making the diamond at the new high school grounds this spring. The absence of rain for the first month hindered the final manicuring of the field. The ground was too soft for infield practice, and as a result the team was seriously handicapped.

The diamond is in much better shape at the present time than it has been all season, and every afternoon Butterfield is working his charges over, even though this is supposed to be vacation week. "There are no vacations for us," the coach remarked. "I was able to pick out several of the ragged edges last week and want to have them all gathered in before we meet Monrovia. We are out after the Central league pennant and mean to win it. The loss of the opener is nothing in our young lives."

Weak on Batting

All the twirlers—and Butterfield has a raft of youngsters that aspire to be moundsmen—have been working their arms out at batting practice this week. The Red and Black squad was very weak with the sticks against Covina, especially with men on bases. Butterfield lays this to lack of practice, and hopes to develop several sluggers before the season is well under way.

WATER SITUATION

At a recent conference in Los Angeles, W. B. DeNure, district manager of the department of public service for the Van Nuys section of the San Fernando valley, announced that due to the necessity of making certain repairs in the reservoir, the water allotment basis established to govern the use of water for agricultural purposes in the valley for the period March 1 to November 1 has been temporarily suspended. It is expected that it will not be resumed for several weeks, during which time farmers and fruit growers of the valley on application will be supplied with all the water desired without affecting the status of their water allotment after the rationing basis is again assumed.

The situation affords San Fernando valley farmers an opportunity to thoroughly wet their soils. The agricultural extension service urges all farmers and fruit growers in the valley to take advantage of this opportunity. Fruit growers are urged to make certain that their soils are thoroughly scaked to a depth of at least six feet, which in most cases will require the application of six acre inches, or $3 worth of water to the acre. Bean growers and truck farmers in general are urged to wet their soils to a depth of not less than four feet, which will require approximately four acre inches, or $2 worth of water to the acre.

Following the conference, Mr. DeNure expressed the feeling that the general improvement in the water situation following the recent rains may make it possible to materially alleviate conditions later in the season, adding that he was hopeful for a change in the water schedule at a later period.

FOR DAWES' PLAN

England has come into line with the official announcement that it would support and help execute the Dawes reparation plan in its entirety if the other interested nations did likewise.

Support of the plan is also promised by Germany. The German government announced it had accepted the Dawes report in principle, which means she will favor it as a basis of settlement, although there may be revision as to detail.

American bankers and economists praise the plan as the best solution yet offered for the problem that has retarded the restoration of European economies for nearly five years.

It is understood that both France and Italy favor the plan, although they have not yet announced formal acceptance of it. France is expected to ask reservations in order to obtain guarantees in the Ruhr.

Statesmen all over the world are paying tribute to the speedy, impartial and thorough manner in which General Charles G. Dawes, the Chicago banker, pointed the way to a settlement after the foremost statesmen and economists of Europe had failed.

SHOE STORE HAS STEADY INCREASE

Selling Force and Stocks Enlarged as Trade Keeps Growing

Despite the fact that the Glendale Bootery, 221 North Brand boulevard, is less than two years old, the constantly growing family of its patrons has necessitated an enlarged staff of salesmen, as well as a materially increased stock of shoes, according to R. E. Brown, proprietor of the store.

Within the past few months two thoroughly experienced shoe salesmen have been added, and an up-to-date shoe repair department has also been installed.

Special attention, asserts Mr. Brown, will be paid to the fitting of small feet. All widths and sizes are being carried in stock and many people who formerly went outside of Glendale for fittings are getting splendid service at the Glendale Bootery.

FIGURES REVEAL LOW DEATH RATE FOR CALIFORNIA

Insurance Firm's Statistics Show Improvement In Health Condition

California showed an encouragingly low death rate in 1923 among its city-dwelling white wage earners. It also had the lowest rate of any of the states for which statistics were compiled for its colored population of the urban industrial class, except Iowa and Delaware, according to death claim figures obtained by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. California's rate of 7.5 per 1000 white industrial policyholders compares very favorably with the rate of 8.2 for the white industrial policyholders of the United States, while its rate for colored industrial policyholders, 10.6 per 1000, is well below the corresjonding rate of 14.5 for all the states having enough colored citizens insured to make their rate significant.

"It should be remembered," says the latest statistical bulletin of the Metropolitan, "that the industrial policyholders of this company, including men, women and children, live almost altogether in the cities and that in such localities they compose practically one-quarter of the entire population. In some states this proportion is even higher; but in all they form a sufficiently large sample of the whole to represent fairly accurately the conditions which prevail among urban dwellers."

Health Campaign

The figures take on an added significance when it is remembered that for fifteen years the Metropolitan, in an endeavor to lengthen life, has carried on organized health work among its industrial policyholders. "This group, as a class," says Haley Fiske, president of the company, "lives under an industrial strain and economic pressure likely to render its members more susceptible to disease. In consequence, the mortality among this industrial group has, in general, been higher than in the general population. But this difference has been very largely overcome during the period of this service. The mortality experience has continued to improve, and the improvement has been much greater than in the registration area of the United States.

Measured in terms of lives, the improvement in industrial mortality in 1923 over 1911 means a saving of 52,600 lives. The registration area mortality for 1923 is not available as yet. The improvement of the company's mortality in 1922 over 1911, in excess of the improvement in the registration area at the comparable ages means a saving of 23,-400 lives."

HONOR DIRECTOR OF ORATORIO AT MEETING OF CLUB

Ebony Baton Presented to John Small; Check For Beneficiary

The success of the recent production of Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah," by the Glendale Music club was recalled last night, when over 200 members and friends of the Music club met at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse to honor John Smallman, director of the oratorio, and to present $350 to Miss Elizabeth Mottern, talented young soprano, who is beneficiary of the Music club's scholarship fund.

All those who took part in the presentation of the oratorio were invited to participate in the affair last night, and singers from Los Angeles and Glendale and neighboring communities who were members of the chorus, and a group of specially invited guests were present.

Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, president of the Music club, opened the program with an inspiring talk on the success of the first oratorio presentation and of future plans for the production of Handel's "The Messiah" at Christmas time under the direction of Mr. Smallman.

Present Baton

Following Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Charles A. Parker, manager of the oratorio department, on behalf of the members, presented Mr. Smallman with a beautiful ebony baton with silver mountings, with the inscription "From the Oratorio Department of the Glendale Music Club," and Mr. Smallman's monogram. It was indeed a surprise honor for Mr. Smallman, and he responded most graciously, expressing his pleasure in working with the Glendale club, and his appreciation for the response he has received from the singers.

Then Mrs. Roberta T. Young, secretary of the oratorio department, presented Mr. Smallman and Mrs. Perry Rogers, accompanist, with books of the oratorio, "The Messiah," beautifully bound in green and gold, with their names embossed in gold. Both Mrs. Smallman and Mrs. Rogers responded with words of appreciation.

The final presentation was made by Mrs. Warren Roberts, treasurer of the Music club, who presented a check for $350 to Miss Elizabeth Mottern, beneficiary of the scholarship fund, who is to go to Chicago for summer study with Stevens. Miss Mottern was most appreciative, and spoke briefly of her plans for future study, expressing the hope that her successes may bring happiness to the Music club of Glendale.

Soloists Heard

During the evening Miss Florence Middaugh, Miss Elizabeth Mottern and Harold Proctor, soloists in the "Elijah" presentation, gave groups of songs, with Mr. Smallman and Mrs. Rogers as accompanists. Mr. Harkill also gave violin numbers.

Later an impromptu dance was enjoyed, with music furnished by musicians in the company. Among those playing for the dancing were Mr. Smallman. At a late hour refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Clair Thomas and her committee.

Miss Myrtle Baldwin was chairman of the committee arranging the evening.

Plans have been perfected for a permanent oratorio department, and work on "The Messiah" will be begun in May.

All Glendalians desirous of joining the chorus can do so by attending the next rehearsal, to be announced, or by communicating with Mrs. Young at Glendale 749-J.

The disappearance of Prewitt is unusual in that he left his limousine in a garage. The case has been turned over to Captain W. G. Bright's homicide squad, it being feared the man has been murdered.

MYSTERY MANSION

Chelsea's mystery house, in London, for years a spot of morbid curiosity to bus passengers, is soon to be replaced by seven modern residential buildings. This old mansion contained a magnificently fitted bridal chamber, prepared for a wedding that never took place. The house was designed by the eccentric virtuoso, Dr. Phene, for his future bride who was taken by death on the morning of the wedding. The heartbroken bridegroom gave orders that the room be sealed up ever afterwards, which it was until the doctor's death about 12 years ago. The mansion is being torn down.

MOSTLY FOR MEAT

Out of every dollar he receives for his product, the American meat packer pays out about 88 cents for his raw material, the livestock as it comes from the farm and range. Out of the margin of 12 cents the packer pays wages, taxes, operating costs and gets his profit. These figures are compiled by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Farmerettes in Germany now have the use of a light wheelbarrow, which is collapsible and easily carried.

SCENIC RAILWAY TO LINK VALLEY TOWNS IS URGED

Co-operation of Civic Bodies Sought by Fowler In Traffic Project

A scenic electric railway, starting from Los Angeles and passing through Glendale, Montrose, Verdugo City, Tujunga, Sunland, Pacoima, San Fernando, Van Nuys, Lankershim, Hollywood, and thence back to the starting point, is advocated by the Verdugo City Association of Commerce, and, through the office of H. N. Fowler, president, an effort will be made to interest the Chambers of Commerce in the various cities concerned in the project.

Steps will also be taken to urge all of the civic bodies and people in the towns and cities along the proposed right-of-way to unite at once for the purpose of negotiating with the Pacific Electric railway and other interested railways, or persons, for the express purpose of bringing about favorable action in this direction.

Connect Canyons

"The proposed route would connect with Verdugo, Big Tujunga, Little Tujunga and Pacoima canyons," said Mr. Fowler this morning, "and the territory and district through which we propose the new railway shall operate is now pretty well covered with electric lines leading direct to the main Pacific Electric depot at Sixth and Main streets, Los Angeles.

"The yellow line and also the Pacific Electric operate to Glendale and connect with the Glendale and La Crescenta Valley line, which operates at present to Pennsylvania avenue in Verdugo City, the terminal being within three miles of Tujunga.

"From Tujunga, via Sunland and Pacoima, to San Fernando, is approximately ten miles. From San Fernando to Los Angeles existing loop lines could connect with the scenic road, and thereby complete the loop.

Project Feasible

"The project is feasible and possible, and would, no doubt, bring thousands of dollars to the coffers of the electric line from tourists and our own people, who would want to make this delightful trip frequently.

"We need and want better transportation from Glendale to Tujunga and other San Fernando valley points."

NOTE OF EASTER SPIRIT IN POEM

A. H. Montgomery Prizes Verse That Reveals Faith Of Deceased Sister

Many are the poems written at Easter time, but an especially beautiful one is prized by A. H. Montgomery of 415 South Central avenue, written by his deceased sister, Mary Montgomery Parsons. The poem reads:

"I laid a branch of lilies fair
Upon thine altar, Lord, to be
An offering meet and worthy thee.
What mean the lilies?
Tho' their hue and fragrance
Other blooms excell,
Do fragrance and beauty
An offering make,
Worthy to lay at the Savior's feet?
From the heart of the lily
That fragrance came,
And on all that pass by it is shed.
From the depth of its pain
It at length has become
An offering worthy and meet.
Its sweet young life must be broken,
That so by its death we may see
The image of Him who, by the same token,
Suffered and died on a tree;
Who gives of his life that others may live,
Who comforts the weary and sad,
Who treads the pathway of pain that he trod
Alone lives close to his God."

FACE ON BANKNOTES

New banknotes being issued by the reorganized Hungarian republican form of government will carry the portrait of the Baroness Szegedy in the place of one of the conventional and rather stiffly classic designs usually put on money of that kind. Baroness Szegedy is considered the most beautiful woman in Hungary.
